Drug Sale Control Moves Approved By Senate Unit

Committee OKs Immediate Ban If Risk Involved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee approved by a solid vote Tuesday two key proposals by President Kennedy to help the government keep dangerous drugs off the U. S. market.

And Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebreeze said a painstaking, cross-country check, yet incomplete, has so far turned up no babies deformed because their mothers took sleep-inducing thalidomide from U. S. sources.

Of 15,904 men and women found who received the drug, he said, about one fifth—or 3,272—were women of child-bearing age and at least 207 were pregnant.

Removal First, Hearing Later

One Kennedy recommendation approved by the Senate group would permit the welfare secretary to yank a drug off the market—and hear arguments later—if he found its use posed an imminent hazard to public health. Present law requires a hearing beforehand.

The other would prohibit any drug from going on the market until the secretary has given a specific OK. This is aimed at preventing any doubtful drug accidentally getting into use. At present an application for the marketing of a new drug becomes effective automatically in 60 days unless the government says otherwise.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said the committee had stamped approval on both proposals overwhelmingly without roll calls. It was the first action behind closed doors on a string of recommendations made by Kennedy to tighten up federal control over the sale of drugs.

Survey Made By FDA

Under the proposal to arm the welfare secretary with power to remove promptly from the market any suspect drug, he would be required to give the manufacturer prompt notice of his action and arrange an early hearing.

At his first news conference since taking office, Celebrezze spoke only of distribution of the drug to U.S. doctors by American manufacturers for experimental use. This was carried out while the Food and Drug Administration was considering whether to license sale of the drug and before the birth of thousands of deformed babies in Europe attributed to it came to light.

Virus Confines Mamie In Paris

PARIS (AP)—Mamie Eisenhower came down Tuesday with what a spokesman described as "a mild case of a flu-like virus."

She was under a doctor's care and spent part of the day in bed in her hotel room.

Former President and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived here Saturday on a tour of Western Europe. When Mrs. Eisenhower stepped off the train, she made a misstep and slightly sprained her right shoulder. She underwent massage and deep heat treatments for the shoulder and it seems to be causing her no further pain.

The condition of Mrs. Eisenhower, who is 65, was causing no alarm. Eisenhower spent most of the day sightseeing.

The Eisenhower spokesman said it was not certain yet whether Mrs. Eisenhower would be able to attend a luncheon to be given Wednesday by French President Charles de Gaulle in his Elysee Palace.

Police Expect Mob Scene At M.M. Rites

Four Suicide Tries By Marilyn Reported

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Police are preparing for a mob scene Wednesday at the funeral of screen siren Marilyn Monroe. So far, the list of those invited—a list prepared by ex-husband Joe DiMaggio—stands at only about 15.

As arrangements were being completed to cope with thousands of uninvited mourners, a New York newspaper reported that the actress, 36, had tried suicide four times in her drama-filled life.

An investigation continued into whether her death was accident or suicide, and who made a mysterious telephone call to her the night she died.

The blonde movie sex goddess was found dead last Sunday in her Brentwood home, victim of an overdose of sleeping pills.

A spokesman for Los Angeles Police Chief William Parker said police expect thousands outside the tiny Chapel of the Palms at Westwood Village Mortuary.

"We're hoping, of course, that that many don't show up," said the police spokesman, "but we've had experience with Marilyn Monroe fans before, so we'll be ready."

Many of Marilyn's friends in the movie industry want to pay final respects at the nondenominational services.

"There are some friends of Marilyn who should be there," said one of the actress' associates, but DiMaggio, famed ex-baseball star, has pared the list to 15, none of them movie stars. "He's running the show."

The chapel holds only 40 persons.

Mrs. Guy Hockett, wife of the managing director of the mortuary, said they expect a mob scene.

Poet Carl Sandburg, a good friend of Marilyn's, was asked to read the eulogy, but his wife said Sandburg, 84, would not make the trip from his home in Flat Rock, N. C.

"I was sorry to see her go," said Sandburg. "There are a lot of others like myself."

The New York Post listed four suicide attempts by the actress—two before she was 19, another one five years ago and the latest four years ago.

This posed the question: If such a suicidal history existed, why was a prescription for 50 pills ordered refilled just two days before her death?

A special coroner's suicide team is working to determine if Marilyn's fatal dose was accidental or intentional.

Defense Chief Asks Satellite Bill Speedup

Humphrey Predicts Measure Will Clear Senate Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top officials of defense and space agencies urged speedy action Tuesday on the administration's communications satellite bill, mired in a Senate controversy.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the Pentagon "strongly supports the objective of establishing a civil communications satellite system as expeditiously as practicable."

Deputy Space Administrator Hugh L. Dryden testified that "if we are to be the leader, we must decide now on the organization to get the job done."

"I don't think that we can postpone and reopen the question much longer if we are to have a system in four or five years," Dryden said.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., predicted the bill, which would create a privately-owned government - controlled corporation to operate the network, will be disposed of by the end of next week.

Humphrey told a news conference that some amendments are being discussed which he thought might remove some of the controversy from the legislation.

Some Democratic senators are fighting to defer action on the legislation, contending it might lead to monopoly control by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. They also fear the proposed corporation might undercut the president's authority in foreign relations.

Humphrey, the assistant Democratic leader, said one proposed amendment under discussion would give the State Department more specific authority to conduct foreign negotiations in connection with global space communications.

Jackie Kennedy And Caroline Flying To Italy

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacqueline Kennedy and her daughter Caroline left by plane Tuesday night for a holiday in an Italian villa overlooking the Amalfi coast.

The First Lady and Caroline, 4, got a round of applause from several hundred spectators as they boarded a regular Pan American flight at Idlewild airport for a nonstop flight to Rome.

All the other passengers had been loaded earlier and Mrs. Kennedy, smiling, and Caroline, looking bashful, boarded only five minute before departure.

They paused at the plane hatch while Mrs. Kennedy received a large bouquet of red roses from Mrs. Sergio Fenoaltea, wife of the Italian ambassador to the United States.

Awaiting Mrs. Kennedy and her daughter aboard the plane was a specially prepared bedroom made by converting a four-seat section.

Mother and daughter will go from Rome to Ravello, near Naples, to be the guests of Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, and her husband, Prince Stanislas, who have rented an 11th-century villa there.

German Reds Seize Three Aboard Train

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police reported Tuesday that three women traveling between Munich, West Germany, and West Berlin were taken off a regular interzonal train by Communist authorities after it had crossed into East Germany Monday night.

At the East German control point of Probstzella, 50 persons were compelled to leave the train for an identity check. The three women did not return. Their nationality was not known.

West Berlin police said they knew no reason for the arrests.

U.S. Reminds Britain, Israel It Wants Soblen

LONDON (AP) — The United States put wrangling Britain and Israel on notice Thursday it emphatically wants Robert A. Soblen back to face his life sentence for spying.

The 61-year-old psychiatrist, a wartime espionage agent of the Soviet Union, remained in a London prison.

There was no firm word when he would be moved on—or to where.

Britain has ordered Israel's national El Al Airlines, which landed Soblen here July 1, to get him out of the country by Wednesday midnight for New York. But El Al's plane for New York—its last one until Friday—left Tuesday without him.

Israel's government declared Sunday that an El Al plane would transfer Soblen back to Israel only, "and under no circumstances to the United States." Communist Czechoslovakia is reported to have offered to accept him.

Lincoln White, U.S. State Department spokesman, told a Washington news conference: "We are concerned that the difficulties regarding Soblen's removal are delaying his return to this country and are emphatically reiterating to both governments our strong interest in having Soblen returned to the United States."

Soblen jumped $100,000 bail in New York last June, fled to Israel in a vain bid for refuge, knifed himself as he was being flown back by El Al and was landed at London for treatment.

The British Home Office, which rejected Soblen's appeal for political asylum here, said it was still waiting formal word from El Al saying when it will take Soblen away.

Sherri Makes Visit To Swedish Doctor

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sherri Finkbine made her first visit to a Swedish doctor Tuesday, and her husband said the couple probably will apply early next week for an abortion.

The operation to prevent birth of the baby she fears is deformed could not be done for several more days, due to the measured pace of processing abortion applications in Sweden.

Sherri, 30, a Phoenix, Ariz., television personality, came to Sweden with her husband Sunday. In the early stages of her pregnancy she took the drug thalidomide, which has been blamed for deformities in thousands of babies, mostly in Europe and Canada.

The Finkbines were unable to obtain legal sanction for an abortion in the United States. Swedish law is different in such matters.

New Polaris A3 Fired But Second Stage Fizzles

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The U.S. Navy Tuesday launched a new look Polaris submarine missile with greater range and power but the second stage malfunctioned.

The Navy said the launch of the new A3 version of the Polaris went well and said the first stage performed nearly perfectly. After the missile disappeared into heavy clouds, however, the second stage malfunctioned and the missile fell short of its intended 1,955-mile flight.

The black and white missile was bullet-shaped and contrasted with the familiar bottle shape of the previous A1 and A2 models.

Algeria Power Turned Over To Ben Bella

ALGIERS (AP)—Premier Ben Khedda quietly turned over power in Algeria to Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella but will continue temporarily as a figurehead of the new nation.

Ben Khedda's office announced the surrender in a terse statement saying "the powers held hitherto by the Provisional Government of the Algerian Republic (GPRA) are henceforth exercised by the Political Bureau."

Ben Bella dominates the bureau.

The provisional government of Ben Khedda will remain in existence as a symbol of the Algerian revolution until it formally resigns after the national elections, scheduled Sept. 2, the announcement said.

Thus shelved from any active role in the administration is Belkacem Krim, the deputy premier who negotiated the peace with France and tried to block Ben Bella's seizure of power.

Jackie Security Forces In Italy Hold Test Drills

Afterward they pronounced all in readiness for the American First Lady, due here Wednesday with her daughter, Caroline, 4.

Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, gave the security forces a chance to test their tactics.

The princess, who has rented a cliff-hanging villa high above the Gulf of Salerno, will be Mrs. Kennedy's host.

The princess and two London friends, Sandra and Douglas Home, sipped cool drinks in a sidewalk cafe Monday on Ravello's main square. That gave Italian police and U.S. Secret Service men an opportunity to run through their procedure in case Mrs. Kennedy decides to sip a drink in public.

Twenty Italian and U.S. agents—out of the more than 65 pressed into duty here—stood watch as Princess Lee and her friends chatted in the cafe.

Soon after breakfast Tuesday the princess and her husband, a Polish aristocrat living in London, drove from the villa to the waterfront at Amalfi. From there they went by speedboat to a private beach at Conca dei Marini. That's where Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline will do their swimming.

Police boats and an Italian navy motor patrol boat cruised off the beach, warding away all other craft. Police blocked the beach's lone land entrance—down a 282-step stairway carved in the rocks behind the thin stretch of sand.

Court Declines To Intervene In Rail Rule Case

CHICAGO (AP) — A program by the nation's railroads to lop off thousands of jobs they consider unnecessary appeared headed for a White House solution after a federal court had declined Tuesday to intervene in the case.

However, the question of court jurisdiction in the dispute will not be settled until the railroad unions decide whether to appeal the court ruling.

The railroads have served notice that they will place new drastic work rules in effect Aug. 16 for 200,000 operating employes. The work schedule would wipe out the jobs of 40,000 diesel firemen and grant no immediate pay raises for on-train employes.

That became the prime consideration Tuesday after U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph Sam Perry, in essence but not formally, dismissed an injunction suit filed by five unions that represent employes who operate the trains. The unions had sought a court ruling against a cutback on jobs.

Lester P. Schoene, attorney for the unions, said no decision had been reached on whether an appeal will be made. Spokesmen for the unions had no immediate comment on their plans.

But the unions have insisted during the negotiations that they will strike if the carriers put job cutbacks into effect without their consent.

A strike call would enable President Kennedy to appoint an emergency board to review the dispute, and this action would postpone any work stoppage for at least 60 days under the Railway Labor Act.

Soviet Envoy Returns

BONN, Germany (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Andrei Smirnov returned Tuesday after three weeks of consultations in Moscow. West German political circles speculated his trip was linked with the Kremlin's recently increased attention to Berlin.

Javits, Two Economists Call For Cut

N.Y. GOP Senator Raps Kennedy For "Indecisiveness"

WASHINGTON (AP)—Calls for tax cuts came from two university professors and a senator Tuesday as Congress opened a new inquiry into the nation's economy.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged enactment this year of a $5.5-billion tax cut for both individuals and corporations. Javits, declaring there is a clear and present danger of another recession, criticized President Kennedy for what he called "agonizing indecisiveness."

Daniel B. Suits, professor of economics at the University of Michigan, proposed that taxes be reduced $10 billion a year in stages. He said this not only would increase employment by one million but would so stimulate business that $4 billion of tax revenue would be recouped.

Quick Tax Relief Advised

J. Frederick Weston, economics professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, proposed "a cut in the normal corporate tax rate by 5 percentage points and a decrease in personal income taxes by splitting the first bracket of taxable income and halving the rate."

Both professors appeared at the opening of a new series of hearings by the Senate-House Economic Committee.

Weston said the longer tax relief is delayed, the more drastic the action that probably will be needed. Fear of increased budget deficits when a tax cut was considered in 1957, he said, led to inaction and a record peacetime deficit of more than $12 billion in 1958-59.

Javits' Proposal

Javits made his proposal in a prepared Senate speech. He said he would eliminate income taxes for persons earning less than $2,000 a year, reduce maximum personal taxes from 91 to 63 per cent, lower corporation rates from 52 to 50 per cent, and reduce rates for all other taxpayers with emphasis on the $2,000-$5,000 bracket.

Javits, who frequently supports administration proposals, said Kennedy is compounding the difficulty by "a default of leadership."

"The extraordinary way the President is seemingly transferring his leadership to committee chairmen on this tax cut issue only dramatizes his indecision," Javits said.

Execution Day Here For "Ma" As Plea Denied

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Elizabeth Ann (Ma) Duncan arrived in chains late Tuesday at San Quentin Prison where she is under sentence to die Wednesday because she couldn't stand to lose her youngest son to another woman.

She and two hired killers were condemned for the murder of her daughter-in-law in Ventura County in mid-November 1958.

During her 9½-hour ride from Corona Women's Prison in southern California to San Quentin Prison, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas heard and denied the 11th-hour plea for a stay of her execution, set for 1 a.m. Wednesday.

At the same time all but 2 of the 31 condemned men on San Quentin's death row went on a hunger strike.

The two exceptions were the killers she hired four years ago to dispose of her pregnant daughter-in-law, Olga Duncan, 30, a Canadian-born nurse. The two—Augustine Baldonado, 28, and Luis Moya, 23—ate heartily. Their execution is set for three hours after Mrs. Duncan's.

Douglas, vacationing at Glenwood, Wash., listened for more than an hour to pleas of attorneys Frank Duncan, son of the condemned woman, and S. Ward Sullivan.

The California Supreme Court, Gov. Edmund G. Brown and the U.S. Dist. Court last week turned down similar pleas.

Returning to Los Angeles, Sullivan and Duncan filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the U.S. District Court. It was denied by Judge Leon R. Yankwich.

10 Major Bills Placed On "Must" List By Kennedy, Demo Congress Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said a must list of 0 major bills for the rest of the 1962 session was worked out by Democratic congressional leaders with President Kennedy Tuesday.

"Once we have acted on these, we can go home and see the folks with a good record," the Democratic whip declared.

Humphrey predicted that the 87th Congress could complete its work by Sept. 15.

He described the breakfast session with Kennedy Tuesday morning "as one of the most productive we've had in a long time."

Here is the list of 10 measures:

1. Communications satellite bill. Passed by the House and now undergoing reopened hearings before the Senate Foreign Relatons Committee, it is due back on the Senate floor Friday. Humphrey said he thinks it can be disposed of in 10 days.

2. Farm bill. A version extending present wheat and feed grains programs has been passed by the House but not yet been sent to conference by the Senate, which earlier approved the President's proposals for tight controls.

3. Drug legislation. Humphrey said this was given a high priority by Kennedy. He added there is a slim chance the measure can be acted on in the Senate this week.

4. Mass immunization bill. This House-passed bill would authorize $36 million in federal funds to help in vaccinating small children against polio, diphtheria, tetanus and other illnesses.

5. Mass transit bill. This would make available $500 million in federal grants and has been approved by Senate and House Banking Committees.

6. Public works bill. A $1.5 billion measure, has passed Senate and cleared House committee but is stymied in the House Rules Committee.

7. Trade expansion bill. Passed by the House and now before the Senate Finance Committee for hearings, it is expected to be ready for the Senate floor Aug. 27.

8. Tax revision bill. It has been passed by the House but revised sharply by the Senate Finance Committee. Humphrey said it would not come up on the floor until after the trade bill.

9. Youth employment bill. Approved by the Labor Committees in both branches, it is awaiting House Rules Committee action.

10. United Nations bond issue. Passed by the Senate, it is pending before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

There was no firm word when he would be moved on—or to where.

Britain has ordered Israel's national El Al Airlines, which landed Soblen here July 1, to get him out of the country by Wednesday midnight for New York. But El Al's plane for New York—its last one until Friday—left Tuesday without him.

Israel's government declared Sunday that an El Al plane would transfer Soblen back to Israel only, "and under no circumstances to the United States." Communist Czechoslovakia is reported to have offered to accept him.

Lincoln White, U.S. State Department spokesman, told a Washington news conference: "We are concerned that the difficulties regarding Soblen's removal are delaying his return to this country and are emphatically reiterating to both governments our strong interest in having Soblen returned to the United States."

Soblen jumped $100,000 bail in New York last June, fled to Israel in a vain bid for refuge, knifed himself as he was being flown back by El Al and was landed at London for treatment.

The British Home Office, which rejected Soblen's appeal for political asylum here, said it was still waiting formal word from El Al saying when it will take Soblen away.

Sherri Makes Visit To Swedish Doctor

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sherri Finkbine made her first visit to a Swedish doctor Tuesday, and her husband said the couple probably will apply early next week for an abortion.

The operation to prevent birth of the baby she fears is deformed could not be done for several more days, due to the measured pace of processing abortion applications in Sweden.

Sherri, 30, a Phoenix, Ariz., television personality, came to Sweden with her husband Sunday. In the early stages of her pregnancy she took the drug thalidomide, which has been blamed for deformities in thousands of babies, mostly in Europe and Canada.

The Finkbines were unable to obtain legal sanction for an abortion in the United States. Swedish law is different in such matters.

New Polaris A3 Fired But Second Stage Fizzles

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The U.S. Navy Tuesday launched a new look Polaris submarine missile with greater range and power but the second stage malfunctioned.

The Navy said the launch of the new A3 version of the Polaris went well and said the first stage performed nearly perfectly. After the missile disappeared into heavy clouds, however, the second stage malfunctioned and the missile fell short of its intended 1,955-mile flight.

The black and white missile was bullet-shaped and contrasted with the familiar bottle shape of the previous A1 and A2 models.

Algeria Power Turned Over To Ben Bella

ALGIERS (AP)—Premier Ben Khedda quietly turned over power in Algeria to Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella but will continue temporarily as a figurehead of the new nation.

Ben Khedda's office announced the surrender in a terse statement saying "the powers held hitherto by the Provisional Government of the Algerian Republic (GPRA) are henceforth exercised by the Political Bureau."

Ben Bella dominates the bureau.

The provisional government of Ben Khedda will remain in existence as a symbol of the Algerian revolution until it formally resigns after the national elections, scheduled Sept. 2, the announcement said.

Thus shelved from any active role in the administration is Belkacem Krim, the deputy premier who negotiated the peace with France and tried to block Ben Bella's seizure of power.

Court Declines To Intervene In Rail Rule Case

CHICAGO (AP) — A program by the nation's railroads to lop off thousands of jobs they consider unnecessary appeared headed for a White House solution after a federal court had declined Tuesday to intervene in the case.

However, the question of court jurisdiction in the dispute will not be settled until the railroad unions decide whether to appeal the court ruling.

The railroads have served notice that they will place new drastic work rules in effect Aug. 16 for 200,000 operating employes. The work schedule would wipe out the jobs of 40,000 diesel firemen and grant no immediate pay raises for on-train employes.

That became the prime consideration Tuesday after U.S. Dist. Judge Joseph Sam Perry, in essence but not formally, dismissed an injunction suit filed by five unions that represent employes who operate the trains. The unions had sought a court ruling against a cutback on jobs.

Lester P. Schoene, attorney for the unions, said no decision had been reached on whether an appeal will be made. Spokesmen for the unions had no immediate comment on their plans.

But the unions have insisted during the negotiations that they will strike if the carriers put job cutbacks into effect without their consent.

A strike call would enable President Kennedy to appoint an emergency board to review the dispute, and this action would postpone any work stoppage for at least 60 days under the Railway Labor Act.

Soviet Envoy Returns

BONN, Germany (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Andrei Smirnov returned Tuesday after three weeks of consultations in Moscow. West German political circles speculated his trip was linked with the Kremlin's recently increased attention to Berlin.

The princess, who has rented a cliff-hanging villa high above the Gulf of Salerno, will be Mrs. Kennedy's host.

The princess and two London friends, Sandra and Douglas Home, sipped cool drinks in a sidewalk cafe Monday on Ravello's main square. That gave Italian police and U.S. Secret Service men an opportunity to run through their procedure in case Mrs. Kennedy decides to sip a drink in public.

Twenty Italian and U.S. agents—out of the more than 65 pressed into duty here—stood watch as Princess Lee and her friends chatted in the cafe.

Soon after breakfast Tuesday the princess and her husband, a Polish aristocrat living in London, drove from the villa to the waterfront at Amalfi. From there they went by speedboat to a private beach at Conca dei Marini. That's where Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline will do their swimming.

Police boats and an Italian navy motor patrol boat cruised off the the beach, warding away all other craft. Police blocked the beach's lone land entrance—down a 282-step stairway carved in the rocks behind the thin stretch of sand.

Javits, Two Economists Call For Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Calls for tax cuts came from two university professors and a senator Tuesday as Congress opened a new inquiry into the nation's economy.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., urged enactment this year of a $5.5-billion tax cut for both individuals and corporations. Javits, declaring there is a clear and present danger of another recession, criticized President Kennedy for what he called "agonizing indecisiveness."

Daniel B. Suits, professor of economics at the University of Michigan, proposed that taxes be reduced $10 billion a year in stages. He said this not only would increase employment by one million but would so stimulate business that $4 billion of tax revenue would be recouped.

Quick Tax Relief Advised

J. Frederick Weston, economics professor at the University of California, Los Angeles, proposed "a cut in the normal corporate tax rate by 5 percentage points and a decrease in personal income taxes by splitting the first bracket of taxable income and halving the rate."

Both professors appeared at the opening of a new series of hearings by the Senate-House Economic Committee.

Weston said the longer tax relief is delayed, the more drastic the action that probably will be needed. Fear of increased budget deficits when a tax cut was considered in 1957, he said, led to inaction and a record peacetime deficit of more than $12 billion in 1958-59.

Javits' Proposal

Javits made his proposal in a prepared Senate speech. He said he would eliminate income taxes for persons earning less than $2,000 a year, reduce maximum personal taxes from 91 to 63 per cent, lower corporation rates from 52 to 50 per cent, and reduce rates for all other taxpayers with emphasis on the $2,000-$5,000 bracket.

Javits, who frequently supports administration proposals, said Kennedy is compounding the difficulty by "a default of leadership."

"The extraordinary way the President is seemingly transferring his leadership to committee chairmen on this tax cut issue only dramatizes his indecision," Javits said.

Execution Day Here For "Ma" As Plea Denied

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Elizabeth Ann (Ma) Duncan arrived in chains late Tuesday at San Quentin Prison where she is under sentence to die Wednesday because she couldn't stand to lose her youngest son to another woman.

She and two hired killers were condemned for the murder of her daughter-in-law in Ventura County in mid-November 1958.

During her 9½-hour ride from Corona Women's Prison in southern California to San Quentin Prison, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas heard and denied the 11th-hour plea for a stay of her execution, set for 1 a.m. Wednesday.

At the same time all but 2 of the 31 condemned men on San Quentin's death row went on a hunger strike.

The two exceptions were the killers she hired four years ago to dispose of her pregnant daughter-in-law, Olga Duncan, 30, a Canadian-born nurse. The two—Augustine Baldonado, 28, and Luis Moya, 23—ate heartily. Their execution is set for three hours after Mrs. Duncan's.

Douglas, vacationing at Glenwood, Wash., listened for more than an hour to pleas of attorneys Frank Duncan, son of the condemned woman, and S. Ward Sullivan.

The California Supreme Court, Gov. Edmund G. Brown and the U.S. Dist. Court last week turned down similar pleas.

Returning to Los Angeles, Sullivan and Duncan filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the U.S. District Court. It was denied by Judge Leon R. Yankwich.

Segregated Restaurant Ban Refused By Pentagon

By The Associated Press

A Defense Department spokesman said Tuesday the military has taken many steps to encourage integrated facilities for troops, but it will not declare segregated restaurants off limits.

The spokesman was commenting on a request from the Baltimore chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE). The organization asked that Aberdeen restaurants which refuse to serve Negroes be declared off limits to all military personnel. Aberdeen is the site of a big army proving ground.

John C. Roemer 3rd, vice chairman of the Baltimore CORE chapter, said the request was sent to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance, and the commander of the Aberdeen Proving Ground.

"The Army declares dangerous or immoral establishments off limits to soldiers," Roemer said he wrote, "and what is more dangerous or immoral in a democracy than racial intolerance?"

The Defense Department spokesman said that non-segregated facilities are provided on military bases, and that local commanders endeavor to make nonsegregated facilities available off base.

In addition to this, he added, a presidential committee for equality of opportunity in the armed forces checks into situations and makes recommendations to improve the effectiveness of the military's non-segregation policy.

Col. W. F. Partin, the Aberdeen post commander, said he has no authority to declare restaurants off limits because of discrimination.

Meanwhile, Edgar C. Pardlow of Hyattsville said about seven members of the Nonviolent Action Group for Peaceful Segregation, will demonstrate in Ocean City next Sunday against restaurants which serve Negroes.

Pardlow said he was "full up to the gullet of integration being shoved down our throats."

He said he thought Ocean City residents were afraid to oppose integration "so we will do it for them."

Officials of CORE have disagreed on the state of racial discrimination in Ocean City. Walter Carter, chairman of the Baltimore chapter, said his group recently tested facilities in Ocean City and members were not refused service.

But Julius Hogson of Washington, eastern regional chairman of CORE, said at a recent national meeting of his organization that plans have been made for an intense demonstration and testing program at Maryland's only Atlantic Ocean resort during August.

Computer May Soon Forecast Court Decisions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Work is progressing on computer systems that will predict U.S. Supreme Court decisions, Reed C. Lawlor, Los Angeles attorney, said Tuesday.

"Work of this kind is just in its infancy," Lawlor reported to the American Bar Association's special Committee on Electronic Data Retrieval. Lawlor is the committee chairman.

"When such methods are further developed, computers can aid the lower courts in ascertaining with greater reliability how the Supreme Court will view the decisions of the lower courts."

The computer techniques also will help lawyers advise clients whether to pursue cases or settle them, he declared.

Lawlor said the prediction method undergoing development is based on the idea that each individual justice is consistent in the manner in which he decides cases involving similar facts.

"The problem is to develop techniques for recognizing the underlying consistency and to express the rules in computer language."

Lawlor said the key to reliability in predicting decisions is the accuracy of the analysis of past decisions. His method uses a mathematical theory of stare decisis, the adhering to past decisions.

So far tested in only the narrow field of right-to-counsel cases, the computer formulas proved correct in predicting 35 out of 37 votes by individual justices on 10 cases.

Lawlor said the equations were developed by analyzing how the individual justices had voted in 27 prior cases. The tests were carried out on UCLA's IBM 7090.

"No attempt has been made yet to use a computer in analyzing trends in cases or when a court will overrule its prior decisions," Lawlor observed.

"It has long been known that modern computers can help reduce the backlog of the courts and the cost of litigation by reducing the time required to perform thorough legal research.

"Possibly they can also help in predicting decisions in some kinds of cases, at least where the facts are clear," he declared.

Deputies OK Larger Italian Parliament

ROME (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies voted Tuesday night to enlarge Italy's Parliament.

They approved a measure to raise the number of deputies in the lower house from 596 to 630 and the Senate membership from 248 to 315.

Terms for all would be five years. Deputies currently serve four years, senators five.

The Senate has already given tentative approval, but must act once more before the proposals become law.

Island Bridge Bids Too High

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland tripped Tuesday on its first baby step toward solving the giant problems raised over development of Assateague Island.

The lowest bid for building a bridge to the Atlantic Ocean island from Worcester County was quarter of a million dollars more than had been anticipated.

The General Assembly authorized a total of $1.5 million with the state putting up two-thirds and the county the remainder.

Opening bids Tuesday, the State Roads Commission found the lowest by Henry C. Eastburn and Son Inc. of Newark, Del., to be nearly $1.8 million.

A commission spokesman said the bureau of bridges will be asked if its estimated costs can be pared or proposed plans revised.

The entire program probably will have to be reviewed by the governor, roads commission and county officials.

The state decided to build the bridge in 1961 after two previous plans by private developers failed.

Britain Says Market Talks Make Headway

LONDON (AP)—Britain reported early Wednesday large areas of agreement in its latest talks with Common Market ministers but conceded that much remains to be done on the crucial problem of Commonwealth food exports.

An account of the talks was made public by Edward Heath, deputy foreign minister and chief British negotiator in the attempts to get Britain into the six-nation European Economic Community.

The Brussels talks last week ended without agreement on the Commonwealth issues affecting Britain.

Britain insists on guarantees that food exports from Canada, Australia and New Zealand will be assured satisfactory markets at the end of the Commonwealth trade preference system.

The six market nations agree to admit Commonwealth food exports up to 1970 but refuse guarantees after that date.

Cashier Charged With Embezzling $9,100 From Bank

BALTIMORE (AP) — The FBI announced Tuesday that John Edward Smith, cashier at the Bank of Delmar in Delmar, Md., has been arrested and charged with embezzling $9,100 in bank funds.

Smith, 43, was released under $500 bond after an appearance here before U.S. Commissioner H. Alan Mezger.

A complaint filed by an FBI agent, and authorized by Asst. U.S. Atty. Stephen H. Sachs, charged the embezzlement started May 31, 1961 and continued through Monday.

Smith, who lives with his wife and two children in the Delaware portion of the town which straddles the Maryland-Delaware border, was a town councilman for six years.

Thalidomide "Heroine" Decorated By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Dr. Frances O. Kelsey the hopes "we have for all our children" were riding with her decision that kept the harmful drug thalidomide off the American market.

Presenting a gold medal for distinguished civilian government service to the 48-year-old Food and Drug Administration medical officer, Kennedy added his personal appraisal Tuesday of the importance of her deed.

Dr. Kelsey, one of six Americans awarded the medals in the White House rose garden, declared she was "impressed and overwhelmed."

Dr. Kelsey's name was added to the list of medal winners by the President himself because her vigilance kept thalidomide from sale in the United States. The sleep-inducing drug has been blamed for causing deformities among children born in West Germany and other countries where it was widely sold.

Waldo K. Lyon, a submarine and arctic researcher absent on a confidential mission; the director of the manned spacecraft center, Robert R. Medals also went to J. Stanley Baughman, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association; and Dr. Donald E. Gregg, chief of the department of cardio-respiratory diseases at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research.

U.N. Considers Space Probes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A plan for an international rocket launching site will be taken up in the U.N. Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space when it meets here Sept. 10.

The United Nations announced Tuesday that the 28-nation committee would convene that day to write its report to the General Assembly opening Sept. 18.

Its scientific and technical subcommittee has recommended that a launching facility or facilities for so-called sounding rockets should be created along the Equator before Jan. 1.

The rockets would be sent up to study the properties of the high atmosphere, especially during the 24-month period of minimum sunspot activity starting next January.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE TO BEGIN SEPTEMBER 15th,

Just Off Newport, R. I.

THE TRIALS

The America's Cup Race is right around the proverbial corner. Intensive summer trials to select a U.S. defender of the America's Cup against Australian 12-Meter sloop "Gretel" have begun. The series allows the America's Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club to make preliminary estimates of the contenders. The final sea trials, at Newport, will occur from August 15th to September 8th.

THE RACE

On September 15th, the Australian sloop "Gretel" will be the 18th challenger for the America's Cup. The start and finish of the Cup races this year, the America's Cup Buoy, will be located some nine miles SSE of Brenton Reef Lightship, just off Newport, R.I. Maximum of seven races are scheduled on successive weekdays. The first boat to win four races takes the America's Cup, the silver trophy that is the most coveted for international yacht racing supremacy, and named for the U.S. schooner "America," which won the 100-Guinea Cup against England's best at the Isle of Wight in 1851. The trophy was deeded as the America's Cup by its owners to the New York Yacht Club in 1857 as a perpetual challenge cup. To date, there have been 17 successful defenses of the cup by the New York Yacht Club with U.S. boats never losing a series. The most famous challenger was Sir Thomas Lipton, who spent millions racing his five Shamrocks here between 1899 and 1930, only to lose each time.

Thalidomide "Heroine" Decorated By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy told Dr. Frances O. Kelsey the hopes "we have for all our children" were riding with her decision that kept the harmful drug thalidomide off the American market.

Presenting a gold medal for distinguished civilian government service to the 48-year-old Food and Drug Administration medical officer, Kennedy added his personal appraisal Tuesday of the importance of her deed.

Dr. Kelsey, one of six Americans awarded the medals in the White House rose garden, declared she was "impressed and overwhelmed."

Dr. Kelsey's name was added to the list of medal winners by the President himself because her vigilance kept thalidomide from sale in the United States. The sleep-inducing drug has been blamed for causing deformities among children born in West Germany and other countries where it was widely sold.

Waldo K. Lyon, a submarine and arctic researcher absent on a confidential mission; the director of the manned spacecraft center, Robert R. Gilruth, known as one of the "ramrods" of the U.S. astronaut program; and Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr., returning after five years as U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union, were among those honored at the ceremony.

Medals also went to J. Stanley Baughman, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association; and Dr. Donald E. Gregg, chief of the department of cardio-respiratory diseases at Walter Reed Army Institute of Research.

U.N. Considers Space Probes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A plan for an international rocket launching site will be taken up in the U.N. Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space when it meets here Sept. 10.

The United Nations announced Tuesday that the 28-nation committee would convene that day to write its report to the General Assembly opening Sept. 18.

Its scientific and technical subcommittee has recommended that a launching facility or facilities for so-called sounding rockets should be created along the Equator before Jan. 1.

The rockets would be sent up to study the properties of the high atmosphere, especially during the 24-month period of minimum sunspot activity starting next January.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE TO BEGIN SEPTEMBER 15th,
Just Off Newport, R. I.

THE TRIALS

The America's Cup Race is right around the proverbial corner. Intensive summer trials to select a U.S. defender of the America's Cup against Australian 12-Meter sloop "Gretel" have begun. The series allows the America's Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club to make preliminary estimates of the contenders. The final sea trials, at Newport, will occur from August 15th to September 8th.

THE RACE

On September 15th, the Australian sloop "Gretel" will be the 18th challenger for the America's Cup. The start and finish of the Cup races this year, the America's Cup Buoy, will be located some nine miles SSE of Brenton Reef Lightship, just off Newport, R.I. Maximum of seven races are scheduled on successive weekdays. The first boat to win four races takes the America's Cup, the silver trophy that is the most coveted for international yacht racing supremacy, and named for the U.S. schooner "America," which won the 100-Guinea Cup against England's best at the Isle of Wight in 1851. The trophy was deeded as the America's Cup by its owners to the New York Yacht Club in 1857 as a perpetual challenge cup. To date, there have been 17 successful defenses of the cup by the New York Yacht Club with U.S. boats never losing a series. The most famous challenger was Sir Thomas Lipton, who spent millions racing his five Shamrocks here between 1899 and 1930, only to lose each time.

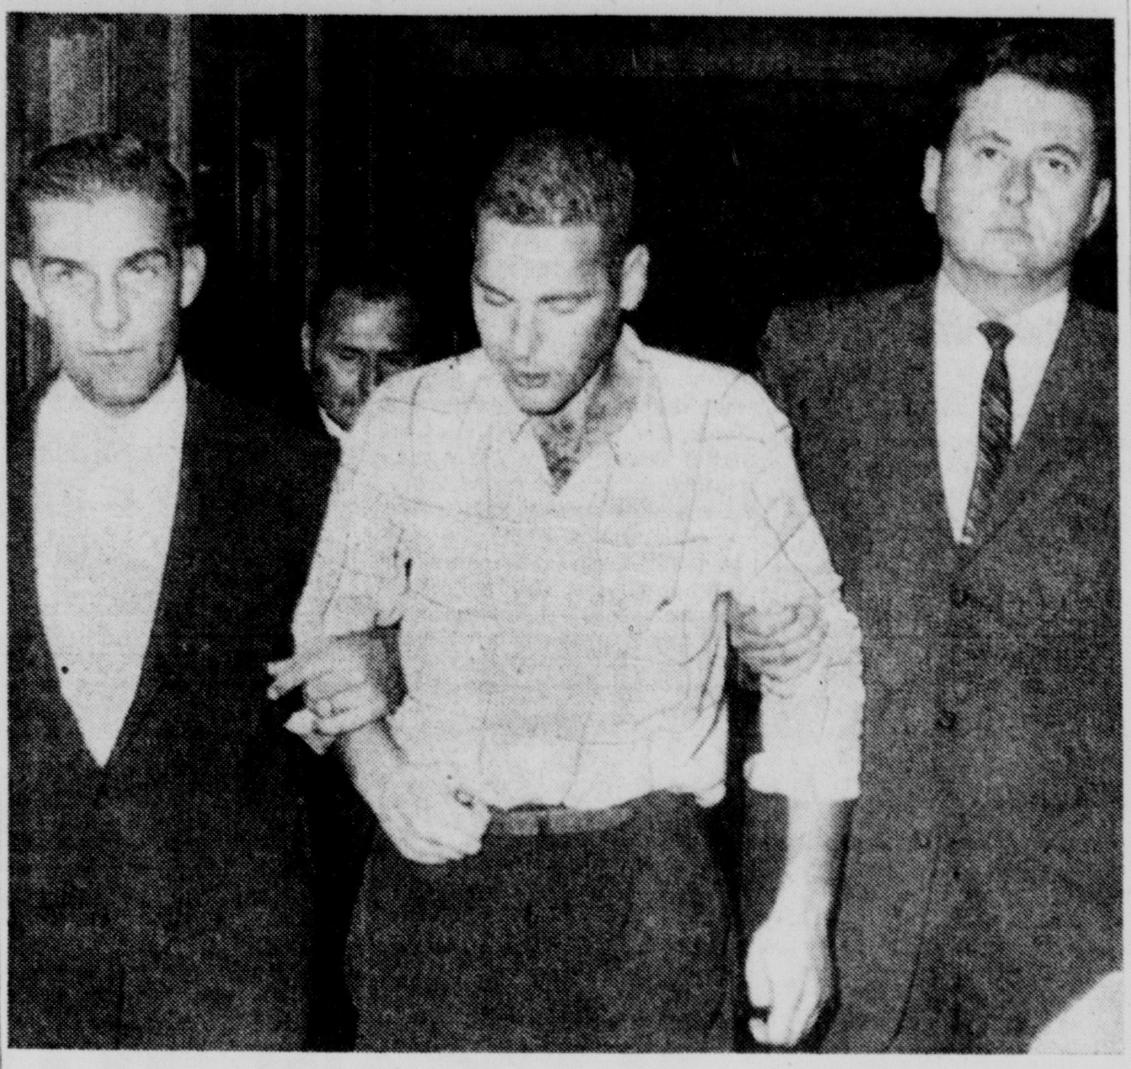
Ala. Fugitive Nabbed In Baltimore

FBI Nabs Man Sought In Boy's Kidnap-Slaying



CAPTURED — Michael Anthony Mayola (center), 28, is being led by two unidentified FBI agents to arraignment in Baltimore yesterday on a charge of unlawfully fleeing Alabama where an 11-year-old boy was found slain. The body of the youngster, Larry Thomas, of Midfield, was found in a shallow grave with a bullet wound in the head. The boy had been missing five days. Mayola was arrested in Baltimore shortly after arriving by bus. (AP Photofax)

BALTIMORE (AP) — The FBI captured in Baltimore Tuesday Michael Anthony Mayola, wanted in Alabama in connection with the kidnaping and slaying of an 11-year-old boy.

Mayola admitted his identity at a hearing before U.S. Commissioner H. Allen Mezger, who ordered him held pending arrival of a warrant from Alabama charging him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The body of the victim, Larry Thomas, was found Monday night in a shallow grave near Oneonta, Ala. A 22-caliber bullet wound was near one eye. The body was wrapped in a blanket.

Larry disappeared Thursday night after he and a companion, Kim Canady, also 11, were lured from a playground at Midfield, Ala., a Birmingham suburb, after a Little League baseball game. When Kim left the stranger's car at a drug store to buy some soft drinks, the man drove away with Larry.

Larry's father, Bernard Thomas, said $1,200 had been contributed as reward money. An additional $1,000 was put up by the state.

The FBI declined to give details of Mayola's capture. An FBI statement announcing his arrest said only "that he left Alabama at 1 a.m. Aug. 6 by bus, arriving in Baltimore this morning."

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, said in Washington that Mayola, 28, had an arrest record including a conviction in 1955 in Maryland for sodomy. Mayola is a native of Washington.

Hoover said Myola had operated a barber shop in Oneonta for the past year, using the name of George R. Workman.

Mayola fidgeted in his cell, chin propped on one hand, while awaiting his hearing. He wore a light shirt with large checks, blue trousers and white argyle socks. Mayola mumbled his responses nearly inaudibly when questioned by Commissioner Mezger. Deputy marshals impounded his personal effects, including $151.52 in cash.

Chief of Police P. H. Handy summoned FBI agents and Midfield police to Oneonta Monday. They searched the house of the man known as Workman. Then Handy led officers to a lonely country plot where a cabin was under construction. They found the grave near a basement wall. The cabin is adjacent to Lake Highland, a resort development seven miles south of Oneonta near U.S. 231.

Officers said Chief Handy's investigation into the disappearance of Workman led to the break in the case. A maroon 1952 car, matching the description of a car seen near the Midfield playground, was found behind Workman's barber shop.

The victim was a fifth grader at Midfield Elementary School. Police said he was killed within hours of his abduction.

Driver Of Death Car Gets Two-Year Term

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) —Army Pvt. Ronald Yerk, 23, Pennsburg, Pa., stationed at Ft. Eustis, Va., was sentenced Tuesday to two years in jail on manslaughter charges growing out of the death of two men on June 4.

Soil Dryness Poses Cattle Feed Problem

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday that continuing drought conditions throughout most of Maryland and northern Delaware posed serious feed problems to dairymen and beef cattle producers.

The weekly report, covering the period through last Saturday, said the dry spell has resulted in scorched pastures and hay fields.

The shortage of soil moisture was reported reaching the critical stage for the corn crop, but the experts said most of the acreage could produce good yields if rains came reasonably soon.

Prospects for soybeans and Southern Maryland's tobacco crop was listed as good to excellent, while crop conditions in Western Maryland and most of southern Delaware were reported as relatively favorable.

"At week's end," the report said, "the cost of the current dry spell could be reckoned in the millions of dollars, but still was much less serious over the two-state area as a whole than the disastrous drought of 1957."

The crop service said a severe hail storm last Saturday caused serious damage to peaches and apples in the Allegany County fruit area.

"Much of the county's peach crop, while not suitable for shipment, is being salvaged for local sales," the report said. "Damage to apples was less severe and extent of losses is still undetermined."

Illegal Entry Trial Of Worthy Delayed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Trial of Negro newspaperman William Worthy Jr. on a charge of illegal U.S. entry from Cuba was delayed Tuesday until because of a crowded docket.

Worthy, reporter for the Baltimore Afro-American, was present but did not face U.S. District Judge Emett C. Choate during brief preliminary proceedings.

136 In Md. Had Thalidomide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze said Tuesday 136 patients in Maryland reportedly have taken the drug thalodomide.

Thalidomide is believed to cause malformation of unborn infants.

Celebreeze said 24 doctors in Maryland received the drug, but it all had been collected from them. He said it was not known how many women of child-bearing age took the drug in Maryland.

In his state-by-state breakdown, Celebrezze said six doctors in West Virginia received thalidomide; treated 112 patients with it; that no doctors in the state still had the drug, and that it was not known how many women of child-bearing age took the thalidomide.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — A report by a Baltimore grand jury on the Tawes-Pollack tape recording is expected to be filed soon.

Jack H. (Jack) Pollack, Baltimore political leader, played a tape recording just before the May primary election. He said it proved Gov. Tawes promised him political patronage in return for $5,000 in campaign funds.

Foreman Henry R. Dorney of the grand jury met Tuesday with Judge Michael J. Manley, to discuss filing of an interim report.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland residents gave more money to the Heart Fund this year than any period during the agency's 16-year history.

W. Winchester White Jr., head of the 1962 campaign, said the total was $587,020 — $50,326 more than 1961. Contributions increased from six of the nine chapters, including Allegany-Garrett, Harford, Montgomery, Southern Maryland and the lower and upper Eastern Shores.

Bringing Up Baby®
HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Certainly babies should have some leeway in setting their own patterns in the matter of feeding and sleeping the first few months. But as baby grows toward a more settled routine, he should be gently steered toward a reasonably fixed schedule. The baby who is guided toward good habits early, is less likely to rebel at more exacting regulations later.

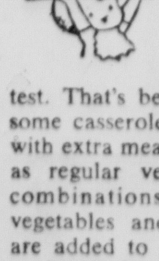
High on the happy list of favorites for the little fellow on a full food schedule are combination dishes. (More ingredients, more flavor.) Gerber High Meat Dinners are bound to win any mealtime popularity contest. That's because these flavorsome casserole dishes are savory with extra meat. (3 times as much as regular vegetable and meat combinations.) Garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning are added to the meat for truly sprightly flavor. Nutritionally, they're a good source of protein, offer significant amounts of vitamins and minerals. Strained or Junior varieties.



Toy trickery. (1) If baby gets take-apart, put-together toys before he's manually ready to use them, let him play with the individual parts, provided they're not small enough to swallow.
Carriage cues. (1) A bright balloon or pinwheel, attached to the front of baby's carriage, will provide many happy looking moments. (2) A transistor radio, tuned sweet and low, will delight baby when he's awake . . . won't disturb him when he's a-snooze.

Mouth-watering memo. Fruits score high as baby favorites. Especially Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits. And for good reason. Orchardist Has Faith In Cloud Seeding

Despite damage locally from Saturday's tornadic-like storm that found hail ruining crops and fruit, faith in the Blue Ridge Weather Modification Company was expressed yesterday by one of the owner-members.

Henry W. Miller Jr., president of Consolidated Orchards Company, pointed out that Saturday's storm was on too wide a front for the airplanes and ground generators to do any good in seeding the clouds.

The Blue Ridge Weather Modification Company, in a contract of $3 per acre, with a San Jose, Calif., modification Company, has two planes, one at Martinsburg, and one at the Cumberland Airport.

In this section of the Appalachian fruit belt, there are 103 ground generators for dispersal of silver diode crystals into the clouds.

The planes and generators work together to seed storm clouds and cause moisture to fall as rain before hail can be formed. Hail is formed by cold updrafts of moist air.

In Saturday's storm, Miller pointed out, the turbulence over this county was too great for a plane to fly.

Federal Weather Bureau reports indicate that there have been a record number of storms east of the Mississippi River this summer and the Appalachian growers have been fortunate in losses being kept down.

In one storm, however, on July 23, Berkeley County, W. Va., and Adams and Franklin Counties, Pa., suffered about $5,000,000 in hail damage, and there was a meeting in Paw Paw on July 25 to discuss the weather modification.

Faith is still being expressed in the work of the Blue Ridge firm, Miller added, despite the sectional losses.

While Saturday's hail caused severe damage to the peach orchards on Irons Mountain, the apple crop in Allegany County was not hurt as badly as earlier believed.

After a two-day check of the holdings of Consolidated Orchards Company in Allegany County, Miller said the hail cut a swath of from one-quarter mile to one-half mile in width through the three and one-half mile apple orchard on Martins Mountain.

Not many of the apples were cut by the hail and they will be marketable. The heavy winds had abated by the time the storm reached the big Martins Mountain orchard.

Consolidated's peach orchard on Irons Mountain was the most severely hurt of all the big company's holdings. There peaches were ripe and being picked. They will be picked immediately and sold quickly for local consumption, Miller said.

Just north of the peach orchard on Irons Mountain, hail hit Delbert Knippenberger's truck farm, and damage there was probably the most severe in the area.

There apples, peach trees, and peppers, tomatoes and cucumbers were ruined. A crop of oats ready to harvest was beaten to the ground, and the only thing left of his corn is stalks and ears. The foliage was trimmed off by the large, jagged pieces of hail.

Consolidated's orchards in nearby Morgan and Hampshire counties escaped damage, as did the big Hampshire peach belt.

Police Investigate Hit-Run Accident

City Police today were investigating a hit-and-run accident which occurred Monday on Frederick Street.

Police said Mrs. Thomas Minke, Christie Road, was stopped on Frederick Street waiting for a train to go over the crossing, when a youth struck the rear of her 1960 station wagon and continued on without stopping.

Mrs. Minke was in the vehicle with her 19-month-old baby at the time of the mishap. Considerable damage was caused to the rear of the station wagon, police said.

County Water System Report Is Received

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a 151-page report from Matz, Childs and Associates, consulting engineers, on the development transmission of a new water supply from Savage River dam.

Included are a number of maps showing proposed transmission lines and other facilities needed in the system.

The survey was completed during the past year. Existence of the Savage River dam and the imminence of the development of a reservoir on the Potomac River at Bloomington makes the use of Savage River dam water feasible to serve the county, according to the report.

The proposed new water system would serve 200 square miles and 92 per cent of the total population of Allegany County. It is estimated by the year 2000 the total water demands of the area covered in the proposed system will reach a maximum of 32.7 million gallons per day.

In order to meet the demands of Allegany County for new potable water supplies, the county commissioners should immediately undertake steps to urge the construction of the dam on the Potomac at Bloomington, the engineering firm reported.

Starting in 1963-65 the proposed water system would utilize 3,000,000 gallons per day from the Savage River dam. This would increase to the 32.7 million for the year 2000.

The total cost of the project would be $18,928,000 with $15,369,000 for the Westernport-Cumberland service area. The Georges Creek service area would cost $3,559,000 by the end of the graduated period of construction during the next 17 years. The 17-year period would be for the Westernport - Cumberland phases and the Georges Creek construction period would be 13 years.

The time period is based on the assumption the construction would be started this year.

Construction of the big dam on the Potomac River at Bloomington was listed as the deciding factor in the proposed new water system as this reservoir would make Savage River dam water available for the supply.

The first phase of construction would include a transmission line between Westernport and Cumberland via the Potomac Valley through the Cresaptown area and then tying in with Cumberland's supply. The other transmission line would traverse the Georges Creek Valley to Frostburg and thence down into the LaVale area.

The survey by the engineering firm covers population growth estimates and also the needs for each community along the line of both transmission lines. The need for sewage facilities in the Georges Creek area is also listed.

The report also shows the need for new water supplies for use of industry in the county.

An "unidentified vitamin" from fish meal improves growth in chickens. It has had a part in the fast growth of the fish meal industry.

With Charles Junior Crawford, 21, of Keyser, was Roy Hale, 35, of Mingo County.

The two men had disappeared over a hill while working at the sauerkraut canning operation at the Randolph County prison farm.

Crawford was serving one-to-ten years for auto theft from a Mineral County Circuit Court sentence. Hale was serving the same time for forgery.

The other four men are believed to be in the Tygart Valley area.

Paper Garbage Bags To Be Available

Cumberland returns to "nighttime" garbage collections Sunday and the R and R Sanitation Company also announced it is launching a campaign to promote the use of paper bags for refuse instead of the usual cans.

The schedule effective August 12 is as follows:

Sunday: West Side-Lindnerville sections. Cans must be at curb by 11 p. m. Sunday.

Monday: North End. Cans must be at curb by 11 p. m. Monday.

Tuesday: South End. Cans must be at curb by 11 p. m. Tuesday.

Wednesday: West Side-Lindnerville. Cans at curb by 11 p. m. Wednesday.

Thursday: North End. Cans at curb by 11 p. m. Thursday.

Friday: South End. Cans at curb by 11 p. m. Friday.

J. W. Rexroad and Joseph W. Riley who operate R and R Sanitation, the city garbage contractor, said it is expected some confusion will result from the change-back. However, they added that during the trial period for day collections, about 80 per cent of residents continued to set out garbage under the old night schedule anyway.

The major changes are these: Cans must be at the curb by 11 p. m. the night of collection instead of 7 a. m. the day of collection. For example: West Side-Lindnerville must have garbage at the curb by 11 p. m. Sunday and Wednesday instead of 7 a. m. Monday and Thursday under the daytime setup.

No collection will be made on Saturday night-Sunday morning under the nighttime setup.

The daytime trial period had been in effect since March 19 and a public opinion poll conducted by the previous administration had favored it. However, the present Mayor and Council voted 4-1 (Commissioner of Police and Fire William V. Keegan dissenting) to return to nighttime collections.

R and R Sanitation will be the agent for the paper garbage bags and metal wall holders which are being made available by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

Rexroad said salesmen will be contacting local residents. He emphasized that a resident may buy either the bag or the wallholder. The large paper bags could sit in a regular garbage can or other receptacle, he said, adding, that something must be provided to hold the bag in position to receive garbage.

Free delivery will be made of the containers and bags by R and R Sanitation. Delivery of refills also will be made, Rexroad said, adding that an attempt will be made to keep a card file on those using the paper containers so they may be contacted about refills before the supply runs out.

Orchardist Has Faith In Cloud Seeding

Despite damage locally from Saturday's tornadic-like storm that found hail ruining crops and fruit, faith in the Blue Ridge Weather Modification Company was expressed yesterday by one of the owner-members.

Henry W. Miller Jr., president of Consolidated Orchards Company, pointed out that Saturday's storm was on too wide a front for the airplanes and ground generators to do any good in seeding the clouds.

The Blue Ridge Weather Modification Company, in a contract of $3 per acre, with a San Jose, Calif., modification Company, has two planes, one at Martinsburg, and one at the Cumberland Airport.

In this section of the Appalachian fruit belt, there are 103 ground generators for dispersal of silver diode crystals into the clouds.

The planes and generators work together to seed storm clouds and cause moisture to fall as rain before hail can be formed. Hail is formed by cold updrafts of moist air.

In Saturday's storm, Miller pointed out, the turbulence over this county was too great for a plane to fly.

Federal Weather Bureau reports indicate that there have been a record number of storms east of the Mississippi River this summer and the Appalachian growers have been fortunate in losses being kept down.

In one storm, however, on July 23, Berkeley County, W. Va., and Adams and Franklin Counties, Pa., suffered about $5,000,000 in hail damage, and there was a meeting in Paw Paw on July 25 to discuss the weather modification.

Faith is still being expressed in the work of the Blue Ridge firm, Miller added, despite the sectional losses.

While Saturday's hail caused severe damage to the peach orchards on Irons Mountain, the apple crop in Allegany County was not hurt as badly as earlier believed.

After a two-day check of the holdings of Consolidated Orchards Company in Allegany County, Miller said the hail cut a swath of from one-quarter mile to one-half mile in width through the three and one-half mile apple orchard on Martins Mountain.

Not many of the apples were cut by the hail and they will be marketable. The heavy winds had abated by the time the storm reached the big Martins Mountain orchard.

Consolidated's peach orchard on Irons Mountain was the most severely hurt of all the big company's holdings. There peaches were ripe and being picked. They will be picked immediately and sold quickly for local consumption, Miller said.

Just north of the peach orchard on Irons Mountain, hail hit Delbert Knippenberger's truck farm, and damage there was probably the most severe in the area.

There apples, peach trees, and peppers, tomatoes and cucumbers were ruined. A crop of oats ready to harvest was beaten to the ground, and the only thing left of his corn is stalks and ears. The foliage was trimmed off by the large, jagged pieces of hail.

Consolidated's orchards in nearby Morgan and Hampshire counties escaped damage, as did the big Hampshire peach belt.

Police Investigate Hit-Run Accident

City Police today were investigating a hit-and-run accident which occurred Monday on Frederick Street.

Police said Mrs. Thomas Minke, Christie Road, was stopped on Frederick Street waiting for a train to go over the crossing, when a youth struck the rear of her 1960 station wagon and continued on without stopping.

Mrs. Minke was in the vehicle with her 19-month-old baby at the time of the mishap. Considerable damage was caused to the rear of the station wagon, police said.

County Water System Report Is Received

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received a 151-page report from Matz, Childs and Associates, consulting engineers, on the development transmission of a new water supply from Savage River dam.

Included are a number of maps showing proposed transmission lines and other facilities needed in the system.

The survey was completed during the past year. Existence of the Savage River dam and the imminence of the development of a reservoir on the Potomac River at Bloomington makes the use of Savage River dam water feasible to serve the county, according to the report.

The proposed new water system would serve 200 square miles and 92 per cent of the total population of Allegany County. It is estimated by the year 2000 the total water demands of the area covered in the proposed system will reach a maximum of 32.7 million gallons per day.

In order to meet the demands of Allegany County for new potable water supplies, the county commissioners should immediately undertake steps to urge the construction of the dam on the Potomac at Bloomington, the engineering firm reported.

Starting in 1963-65 the proposed water system would utilize 3,000,000 gallons per day from the Savage River dam. This would increase to the 32.7 million for the year 2000.

The total cost of the project would be $18,928,000 with $15,369,000 for the Westernport-Cumberland service area. The Georges Creek service area would cost $3,559,000 by the end of the graduated period of construction during the next 17 years. The 17-year period would be for the Westernport - Cumberland phases and the Georges Creek construction period would be 13 years.

The time period is based on the assumption the construction would be started this year.

Construction of the big dam on the Potomac River at Bloomington was listed as the deciding factor in the proposed new water system as this reservoir would make Savage River dam water available for the supply.

The first phase of construction would include a transmission line between Westernport and Cumberland via the Potomac Valley through the Cresaptown area and then tying in with Cumberland's supply. The other transmission line would traverse the Georges Creek Valley to Frostburg and thence down into the LaVale area.

The survey by the engineering firm covers population growth estimates and also the needs for each community along the line of both transmission lines. The need for sewage facilities in the Georges Creek area is also listed.

The report also shows the need for new water supplies for use of industry in the county.

Mineral County Man Recaptured

A Mineral County inmate who escaped from the Huttonsville, W. Va., Medium Security Prison Monday, along with five others, was picked up Monday night on Cheat Mountain by prison guards and State Police.

With Charles Junior Crawford, 21, of Keyser, was Roy Hale, 35, of Mingo County.

The two men had disappeared over a hill while working at the sauerkraut canning operation at the Randolph County prison farm.

Crawford was serving one-to-ten years for auto theft from a Mineral County Circuit Court sentence. Hale was serving the same time for forgery.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In your opinion, what are the chances of a marriage working between two people of different educational levels?

I've been going with a bachelor 37 years of age. He has had two years of college. I have had only high school. I hold a good job and have done well in the business world. He is the only person I know who makes me feel inferior because I didn't go to college. When we have a difference of opinion he always concludes with: "Well, what do YOU know. With your limited education your opinion doesn't count for anything."

Last night, he threw my ignorance into my teeth once too often. I told him we were through for good.

This morning he phoned and said he'd like to try again. What do you think of our chances for making a go of it?—ILLITERATE

DEAR ILLITERATE: Not good. And schooling has nothing to do with it.

So the lummox had two years of college. Big deal. If, in 37 years he hasn't learned anything about humility, consideration and kindness, he's the one who is ignorant, not you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 52 but could pass for younger. My husband died eight years ago and I am running his business.

Three years ago I started to go with a charming bachelor who is now 64 years of age. Alfred lives with his widowed sister whose age I do not know, but I would guess she is about 66. A spinster niece who is about 45 lives with them also.

I enjoy Alfred's company more than anyone else's. He takes me to all the finest places (money no object) and our friends think of us as a couple.

I want to be married and I've made this clear in recent months. Alfred says he promised his mother he would always look after his sister and he cannot break the promise. He has asked me to wait until his sister dies.

If I break off witn Alfred I will be terribly lonely but when I think about the future, it frightens me. Please help me to see this clearly. — BLURRED VISION

DEAR BLURRED: 52 is no age to be sitting around waiting for a man's sister to die.

Get with it Honey, he doesn't want to be married. If Alfred's sister died, he'd probably tell you he has to look after his niece. This man hasn't been a bachelor all these years for nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a boy 16 and have never asked a girl for a date. I am not exactly bashful but I need a little help in starting off right.

This chick I want to ask is 15 and has a real great personality. Her mother and my mother are good friends. Also, my brother has dated her sister.

Seeing as how I have never taken out a date before should I ask my mother to ask her mother? Or should I ask my brother to speak to her sister?

You'd better read this over a couple of times because I know I am not making this clear. This will give you an idea of how mixed up I am. Thank you. — GEORGE

DEAR GEORGE: It's the girl you want to take out, isn't it? Well then ask HER and leave the rest of the clan out of it. You're welcome.

Confidential to TWENTIETH CENTURY CAESAR: Sorry but I don't agree. People are not AGAINST one another. They are merely FOR themselves. (And you too, Brutus.)

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Expressive eyes tell a great deal about the inner YOU.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Why Eyebrows, Anyway

Eyebrows don't offer warmth. They don't provide any necessary protection. They're absolutely no use at all when you're seeking shade on sunny days. The purpose of eyebrows would seem to be as remote as the reason for the appendix—until you judge them at their face value.

The way to decide if your eyebrows are doing what they should for your face and if they can be improved is to make an honest appraisal of your browline before a well-lighted mirror. Strip all the makeup off your face first . . . and skin your hair back, too. The bare truth is what you want to determine.

Look at your face—at its general size and shape. Then look at its individual features, especially the eyes. How do their size and shape compare to the facial contours?

Is your face broad? Then you'll want brows that will seem to widen the eye area, thus slimming your lower features by contrast. Use your pencil to extend the brows slightly beyond the outer corners of the eyes.

Is it a round face? Then avoid the repetition of roundness in your brows. With your pencil, have the arch of each brow assume an angle—and be sure the outer edge of each brow does not drop into a downward curve.

Have you a long face? Full brows will make it appear shorter. Each brow should be thickest at the topmost point of the arch. And keep those arches a bit off center, in the direction away from the nose.

Do you want to fill out a narrow face? Shorter brows will add the width you want. Don't let your pencil travel past the outer boundaries of the eyelids.

Does an A-shaped face have you stumped? To help restore the illusion of proportion to a narrow forehead and wide jawline, begin each brow with fullness; then, at the arch, let the lines graduate into slender curves that terminate in an upward ilt.

This same style of brow belongs on faces with very small features. On faces with close-set eyes or small eyes, pluck a few more hairs over the bridge of the nose to create more space between the ellipse of each eyebrow.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, — If Joan Collins intends to keep an eye on Anthony Newley, the boyfriend, she'll have to spend the rest of the summer in London. The talented Tony goes directly from his show, "Stop The World I Want To Get Off" into a movie, "The Sad Small World of Sammy Lee."

"Sammy" won Tony the critics' award and the equivalent of an Emmy when he played it on BBC last year.

When Mickey Rooney played it in this country, it also won him an Emmy nomination. Seven Arts will release Newley's film version in the USA.

Oh, yes - about Miss Collins. She could jolly well return here with Tony in October as Mrs. Newley, that's how serious their romance is getting.

No one can accuse Sophia Loren of being other than a fair person as well as a femme fatale. Asked while she was here recently if Carlo Ponti's first wife was responsible for the bigamy charge filed against them, Sophia quickly said, "no, no. The complaint was placed by an unknown person. Carlo and his first wife parted most amicably."

As much as sha tries to hide her distress over their troubles, this action hangs like an axe over Sophia's magnificent head. "Just let it be settled one way or the other - and soon," she says, "just let us know peace again."

Streamlined Sue Lyon, the numphlet of "Lolita," just had to be kidding the other day when she said she'd like a change of movie pace - something like "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farms". Well, 14 years old or not, I can tell here there's not a producer in town crazy enough to give her such a goody-goody. Not after "Lolita," my little pet.

On the whole, Sue acts, if she doesn't look, her tender years. Lunching with her mother at MGM the other day, the tender sprout was looking everywhere for movie stars - particularly for Paul Newman, her favorite (he's at Paramount, Sue).

She is proud that she enters her third year of high school this fall. She likes school.

"I'm leaving for Westport on Sunday night even if 20th sues me," Joanne Woodward told me after completing her final dubbing on "A Woman In July." With her will be husband Paul Newman to say nothing of the five children (three by Paul's previous marriage) all headed for their new home in Connecticut.

"Even though we're calling this our vacation," she laughed, "it's going to be no picnic. We're re-doing the house and the workmen will still be around. Also, Paul and I are always inviting friends to visit us - and they always show up. What with the workmen, the children, my mother who is coming up from South Carolina, and our friends - it should be a most restful vacation."

Another fugitive from Hollywood on Broadway this fall is MacDonald Carey. After eight years away from the main stem, Mac steps back to the footlights in a TV comedy titled "Memo" by Allan Scott, last show he did in New York was "Anniversary Waltz" in 1954.

Even if he is busy on Broadway for the rest of the year, the very popular Mr. C won't be missing from the Hollywood screen. Hes just finished "Tammy And The Doctor" with Sandra Dee and it will be playing the movie houses while he's trodding the boards. Also his "Lock-up" TV series is in re-issue.

Try driving along our famed "Sunset Strip" after eight o'clock at night and you've got your traffic jam cut out for you. Both locals and summer tourists are taking a look at the glamorous new buildings going up in every block along the way once glamorized by such night spots as the Old Trocadero, Mocambo and Ciro's.

One of the sights is the New Hollywood Thunderbird Inn, all set for its official opening on Wednesday. Featuring the handsome "Premiere Room" for dining and dancing, the inn has oversized rooms and an enormous pool overlooking the city. The two men responsible for the inn are the father and son team of Allen and Marc Siegel - and next year they're starting a new 17-story, 600-room edifice right down the street.

While Susan Hayward and her ever lovin' Eaton Chalkley were winging the Atlantic to London, her producers Stuart Miller and Larry Turman were setting her leading man for "Summer Flight." He's Michael Craig, whom Britishers are calling the sexiest leading man since Rex Harrison. The handsome charmer is actually under contract to Columbia, and was borrowed through arrangements with Mike Frankovich, Columbia head in Europe. "Summer Flight" is a United Artists Picture...

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Alana Ladd and millionaire Robert Westbrook continuing their hand holding at the Luau.

Call him Uncle Paul. Paul Newman rates the title when his brother Arthur and wife Betty welcome their first baby this winter.

Frank Sinatra Jr. and Hayley Mills rating as the cutest teenage daters in town. Her mother is always along. And Frank introduced Hayley to his father, also a celebrity, last Sunday at a swim session at the senior Sinatra's.

Rosalind Russell and Freddie Brisson are heading back to Hollywood from a long vacation in Europe.

One of the first decisions Darryl Zanuck must make at 20th is what to do about "The Enemy Within," the Bob Kennedy labor book. Scripter Budd Schulberg, after spending a year on the project, has to move on to other assignments. Unless Darryl gives him assurance that "Enemy" will jell.

Sir Michael Redgraves' actor son, Corin, was married in London to Deidre Hamilton-Hill, non-pro daughter of a naval officer.

Nancy Kwan and bridegroom Peter Pock are separated - but only while he flew back to his native Austria on his ski lodge business.

Good news for Dwayne Hickman. His doctors have given him the green light to resume activity after nine months of treatment for a debility blood virus.

The United States forces stubbed their toes against Italy in today's hand taken from the 1962 edition of their match for the world title.

At the table, where Italy was seated North and South, their American opponents offered strenuous competition on the way up, and eventually sacrificed at six spades against a diamond slam that was a laydown. The defense cashed the first three club tricks, South overruffing the dummy on the third round, to register a two trick set. The loss of only 300 points on the hand appeared at first blush to the Americans to be a profitable venture in light of the fact that their opponents would have scored 920 points for the six diamond bid.

At the other table, however, the bidding developed in a totally unexpected manner. The United States player seated South elected to open with a rather unorthodox one no trump bid. West made a preëmptive jump overcall of three spades and North, who had visions of a slam, signalled his desires by cue bidding the opponent's suit. His four spade call forces South to bid again, and it was his intention to raise whichever suit partner named.

South was apparently alarmed at the drastic turn of events and, in an effort to slow down the proceedings, he rebid four no trump. Inasmuch as no suit had been mentioned by the partnership, this could hardly be construed as a Blackwood call. South was merely showing a spade stopper and a desire to sign off. Whether or not North should have abided by his partner's request is open to conjecture. Even if partner has part of his values in spades, a suit contract at the five level may well offer a greater measure of safety and should not be in jeopardy in any event. Had North bid five clubs at this point, South would undoubtedly have revealed his diamond suit, and it would have required no special enterprise for North to carry on to slam.

North actually chose to pass four no trump, and the Italians proceeded to display one of their typically devastating defenses. In an effort to get a spade lead thru declarer's marked king, West opened his singleton heart. East obliged by winning the trick with the ace and returned the six of spades. West captured the jack with his queen and, on the next lead, his ace felled an even bigger prize. The procession of spades continued until the defense had taken the first nine tricks registering a 300 point set and a net swing on the hand to Italy of 600 points.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In your opinion, what are the chances of a marriage working between two people of different educational levels?

I've been going with a bachelor 37 years of age. He has had two years of college. I have had only high school. I hold a good job and have done well in the business world. He is the only person I know who makes me feel inferior because I didn't go to college. When we have a difference of opinion he always concludes with: "Well, what do YOU know. With your limited education your opinion doesn't count for anything."

Last night, he threw my ignorance into my teeth once too often. I told him we were through for good.

This morning he phoned and said he'd like to try again. What do you think of our chances for making a go of it?—ILLITERATE

DEAR ILLITERATE: Not good. And schooling has nothing to do with it.

So the lummox had two years of college. Big deal. If, in 37 years he hasn't learned anything about humility, consideration and kindness, he's the one who is ignorant, not you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 52 but could pass for younger. My husband died eight years ago and I am running his business.

Three years ago I started to go with a charming bachelor who is now 64 years of age. Alfred lives with his widowed sister whose age I do not know, but I would guess she is about 66. A spinster niece who is about 45 lives with them also.

I enjoy Alfred's company more than anyone else's. He takes me to all the finest places (money no object) and our friends think of us as a couple.

I want to be married and I've made this clear in recent months. Alfred says he promised his mother he would always look after his sister and he cannot break the promise. He has asked me to wait until his sister dies.

If I break off with Alfred I will be terribly lonely but when I think about the future, it frightens me. Please help me to see this clearly. — BLURRED VISION

DEAR BLURRED: 52 is no age to be sitting around waiting for a man's sister to die.

Get with it Honey, he doesn't want to be married. If Alfred's sister died, he'd probably tell you he has to look after his niece. This man hasn't been a bachelor all these years for nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a boy 16 and have never asked a girl for a date. I am not exactly bashful but I need a little help in starting off right.

This chick I want to ask is 15 and has a real great personality. Her mother and my mother are good friends. Also, my brother has dated her sister.

Seeing as how I have never taken out a date before should I ask my mother to ask her mother? Or should I ask my brother to speak to her sister?

You'd better read this over a couple of times because I know I am not making this clear. This will give you an idea of how mixed up I am. Thank you. — GEORGE

DEAR GEORGE: It's the girl you want to take out, isn't it? Well then ask HER and leave the rest of the clan out of it. You're welcome.

Confidential to TWENTIETH CENTURY CAESAR: Sorry but I don't agree. People are not AGAINST one another. They are merely FOR themselves. (And you too, Brutus.)

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Expressive eyes tell a great deal about the inner YOU.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Why Eyebrows, Anyway

Eyebrows don't offer warmth. They don't provide any necessary protection. They're absolutely no use at all when you're seeking shade on sunny days. The purpose of eyebrows would seem to be as remote as the reason for the appendix—until you judge them at their face value.

The way to decide if your eyebrows are doing what they should for your face and if they can be improved is to make an honest appraisal of your browline before a well-lighted mirror. Strip all the makeup off your face first . . . and skin your hair back, too. The bare truth is what you want to determine.

Look at your face—at its general size and shape. Then look at its individual features, especially the eyes. How do their size and shape compare to the facial contours?

Is your face broad? Then you'll want brows that will seem to widen the eye area, thus slimming your lower features by contrast. Use your pencil to extend the brows slightly beyond the outer corners of the eyes.

Is it a round face? Then avoid the repetition of roundness in your brows. With your pencil, have the arch of each brow assume an angle—and be sure the outer edge of each brow does not drop into a downward curve.

Have you a long face? Full brows will make it appear shorter. Each brow should be thickest at the topmost point of the arch. And keep those arches a bit off center, in the direction away from the nose.

Do you want to fill out a narrow face? Shorter brows will add the width you want. Don't let your pencil travel past the outer boundaries of the eyelids.

Does an A-shaped face have you stumped? To help restore the illusion of proportion to a narrow forehead and wide jawline, begin each brow with fullness; then, at the arch, let the lines graduate into slender curves that terminate in an upward ilt.

This same style of brow belongs on faces with very small features. On faces with close-set eyes or small eyes, pluck a few more hairs over the bridge of the nose to create more space between the ellipse of each eyebrow.

The saluki, a slim dog of the Near East, is thought to be the living representative of the first dog trained for hunting by man. Easily running at speeds up to 40 miles an hour, it can tire a gazelle.

Some water birds and shore birds have been known to travel more than 8,000 miles when they are migrating.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD, — If Joan Collins intends to keep an eye on Anthony Newley, the boyfriend, she'll have to spend the rest of the summer in London. The talented Tony goes directly from his show, "Stop The World I Want To Get Off" into a movie, "The Sad Small World of Sammy Lee."

"Sammy" won Tony the critics' award and the equivalent of an Emmy when he played it on BBC last year.

When Mickey Rooney played it in this country, it also won him an Emmy nomination. Seven Arts will release Newley's film version in the USA.

Oh, yes - about Miss Collins. She could jolly well return here with Tony in October as Mrs. Newley, that's how serious their romance is getting.

No one can accuse Sophia Loren of being other than a fair person as well as a femme fatale. Asked while she was here recently if Carlo Ponti's first wife was responsible for the bigamy charge filed against them, Sophia quickly said, "no, no. The complaint was placed by an unknown person. Carlo and his first wife parted most amicably."

As much as she tries to hide her distress over their troubles, this action hangs like an axe over Sophia's magnificent head. "Just let it be settled one way or the other - and soon," she says, "just let us know peace again."

Streamlined Sue Lyon, the numphlet of "Lolita," just had to be kidding the other day when she said she'd like a change of movie pace - something like "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farms". Well, 14 years old or not, I can tell here there's not a producer in town crazy enough to give her such a goody-goody. Not after "Lolita," my little pet.

On the whole, Sue acts, if she doesn't look, her tender years. Lunching with her mother at MGM the other day, the tender sprout was looking everywhere for movie stars - particularly for Paul Newman, her favorite (he's at Paramount, Sue).

She is proud that she enters her third year of high school this fall. She likes school.

"I'm leaving for Westport on Sunday night even if 20th sues me," Joanne Woodward told me after completing her final dubbing on "A Woman In July." With her will be husband Paul Newman to say nothing of the five children (three by Paul's previous marriage) all headed for their new home in Connecticut.

"Even though we're calling this our vacation," she laughed, "it's going to be no picnic. We're re-doing the house and the workmen will still be around. Also, Paul and I are always inviting friends to visit us - and they always show up. What with the workmen, the children, my mother who is coming up from South Carolina, and our friends - it should be a most restful vacation."

Another fugitive from Hollywood on Broadway this fall is MacDonald Carey. After eight years away from the main stem, Mac steps back to the footlights in a TV comedy titled "Memo" by Allan Scott, last show he did in New York was "Anniversary Waltz" in 1954.

Even if he is busy on Broadway for the rest of the year, the very popular Mr. C won't be missing from the Hollywood screen. Hes just finished "Tammy And The Doctor" with Sandra Dee and it will be playing the movie houses while he's trodding the boards. Also his "Lock-up" TV series is in re-issue.

Try driving along our famed "Sunset Strip" after eight o'clock at night and you've got your traffic jam cut out for you. Both locals and summer tourists are taking a look at the glamorous new buildings going up in every block along the way once glamorized by such night spots as the Old Trocadero, Mocambo and Ciro's.

One of the sights is the New Hollywood Thunderbird Inn, all set for its official opening on Wednesday. Featuring the handsome "Premiere Room" for dining and dancing, the inn has oversized rooms and an enormous pool overlooking the city. The two men responsible for the inn are the father and son team of Allen and Marc Siegel - and next year they're starting a new 17-story, 600-room edifice right down the street.

While Susan Hayward and her ever lovin' Eaton Chalkley were winging the Atlantic to London, her producers Stuart Miller and Larry Turman were setting her leading man for "Summer Flight." He's Michael Craig, whom Britishers are calling the sexiest leading man since Rex Harrison. The handsome charmer is actually under contract to Columbia, and was borrowed through arrangements with Mike Frankovich, Columbia head in Europe. "Summer Flight" is a United Artists Picture...

Booster Pump To Be Installed Next Week

Stored Water Will Fill Needs

WESTERNPORT — Mayor Ray L. Wilt announced at the council meeting held Monday evening, August 6 at the city building, that a new boster water pump will be installed next week at the woodyard of the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

The council decided it would be best to build up a sufficient water supply in the storage tank and reservoir this week in preparation for shut-off of water during the installation of the pump. The town will not be without water while the work is being done.

It is hoped that this new addition will boost the water supply for the town considerably.

The paving of Poplar, Rock and Johnson streets was completed the past week.

The contractor advised the Mayor and Commissioners that streets which are not curbed, even though allocated for paving this year, can not be done after September 15, because of cooler weather.

A letter from Timothy Kady advised the group that he has two trees for removal which the town may have for a community Christmas tree.

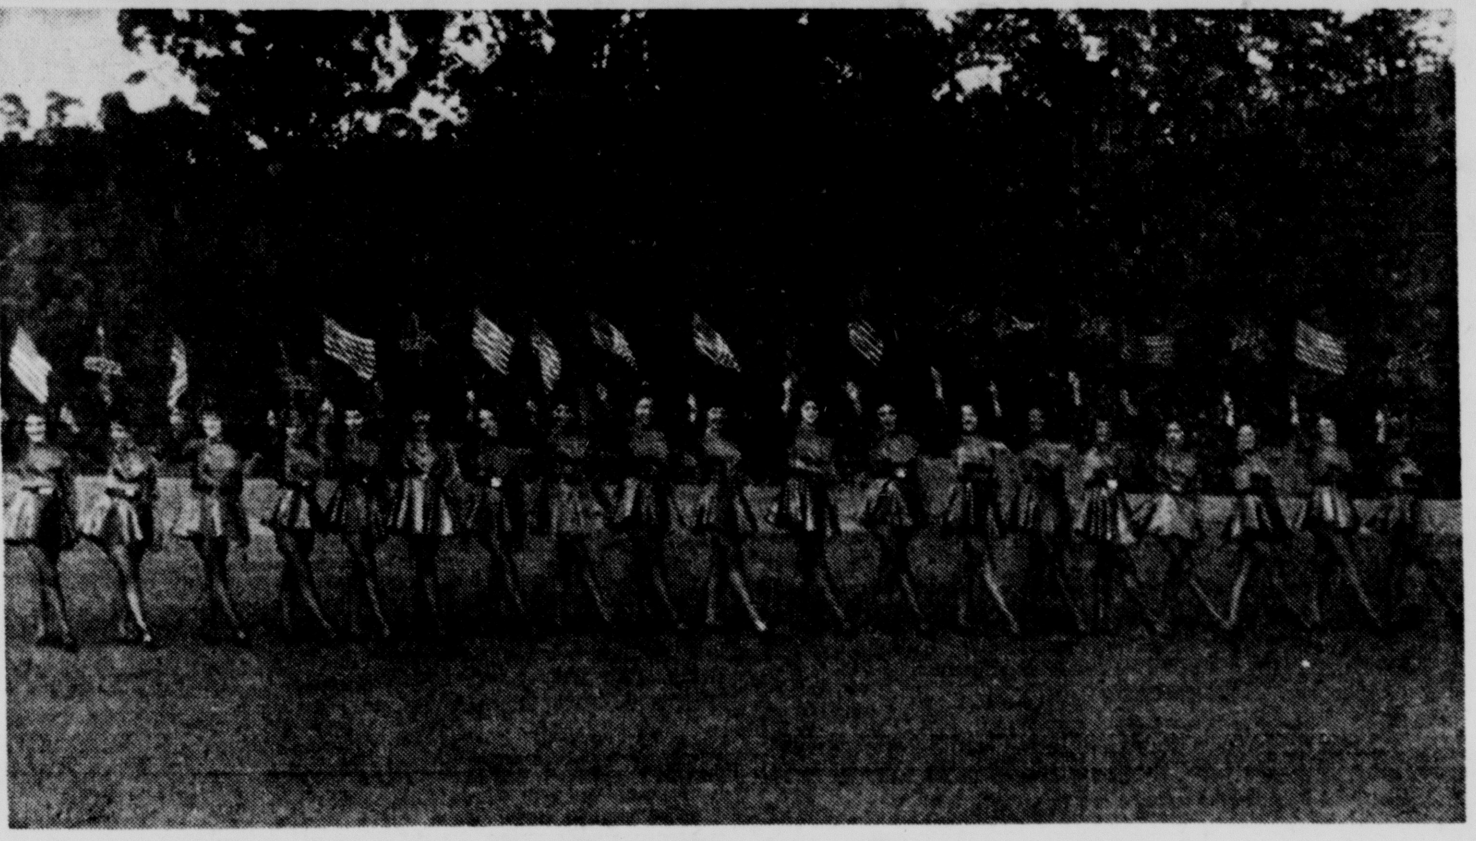
An adjustment was granted on the sewage and water bill, requested by Dr. William Lesh.

Rev. Eugene Ruane, assistant pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, was a visitor at the meeting. He stated that he was interested in the recreation facilities of the town.

Dinner Is Planned By Church Women

FROSTBURG — The Catholic Women's Organization of Saint Michael's Church will have its annual dinner at Happy Hills Restaurant on Tuesday, August 21.

Reservations must be made by August 16 by contacting Mrs. Elaine Veronneau—OV 9-6476. Entertainment will follow the dinner.



Act From Romney Revue

This is an act from "The Romney Revue of '62," a colorful presentation of pretty girls singing and dancing their way through an hour's show on an outdoor stage on the campus of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and Blind in Romney as a part of the community's bicentennial celebration. This show will be staged tonight and again on Friday night. It is produced and directed by Emmett and Nina Oldfield, professional showmen now residing in Romney.

Carnival Is Set For Piedmont

PIEDMONT — Piedmont Council 685, Knights of Columbus, will hold a street carnival next Monday through Saturday. Julian Davis is general chairman.

The affair will be held on the old Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad Company right-of-way on Lyons Street.

Court Sancta Maria 485, Catholic Daughters of America, is co-sponsoring the carnival. The Columbian Squires are assisting.

Efforts are being made to obtain various types of equipment to provide amusement stands and rides for children.

Lonaconing Lions. Hear Talk On Snakes

LONACONING—Robert Haugen, who is employed at the Jungleland, Thurmont, near where he resides and teaches, was guest speaker at the Lonaconing Lions Club dinner program on Monday evening at the VFW home.

"Snakes" was his topic with Mr. Haugen showing "Charlie, the Golden King" pet snake to the club members as a highlight of his address. He told of his work on the snake farm, and explained the four poisonous snakes in the United States, their habitats, likes, dislikes and dangers.

Romney Was Beehive Of Civil War Action

Romney, the county seat of Hampshire County, which will observe its 200th anniversary today through Saturday, changed hands 56 times during the Civil War as Confederate and Federal troops battled through this part of the country.

On Easter Monday, April 21, 1862, John Blue, a resident of Romney, made a thrilling escape from the Wirgman Building where he was being held by Union soldiers for spying for the Confederacy.

The Valley News Echo April edition carried this dispatch taken from files of old papers of the time:

Romney, Va., April 30, 1862 — John Blue, a citizen of this city, made a daring escape from his Federal captors on Easter Monday, April 21, and returned to the Confederate camp.

Blue, who was not a regular member of the Confederate Army at the time of his capture, had been active in spying on the Federal troops in and around this city, for the Rebels. He has become widely known in this area for his daring spying missions and for the valuable information turned over to the Confederates.

Late one night last month, Blue went to his father's house, about four miles from this city. Although the Federals were in occupation of the area and were looking for Blue, he "concluded that since no Yankees had been at father's house since Lauder left Romney, I could take a few hours rest and went to sleep."

A few hours later Blue awoke and found the house surrounded by Federal troops. He hid in the garrett but soon was discovered by Col. Stephen W. Downey. Blue, his father, and John Smith and Wesley Dike were taken prisoner and marched to this city. The four prisoners were searched, then Dike and Blue's father were set free. Blue and Smith were locked in a second story room of a building facing the main street, under guard.

During his imprisonment, Mrs. John C. Heiskell and several other ladies of this city brought furniture, blankets and warm meals to Blue for his comfort. He was carefully questioned by Downey, who offered Blue his freedom if he would take the oath of allegiance. Blue refused and plans were made to send him to the Federal prison at Wheeling.

On April 21, Blue seized his chance to escape. He was guarded by two corporals and four privates. With a weight he had carried in his pocket since he entered the building, he dispatched in the early morning hours the only member of his guard who was awake.

He seized the prostrate corporal's coat and gun, cautiously walked down the steps and out the building, and across the street, in front of about 50 Federal soldiers in front of the Court House.

Blue's escape was soon detected and the Federals immediately began to pursue him. Blue was on foot and it was difficult to conceal his tracks in the frozen snow. He did, however, manage to elude the Federals and eventually managed to return to the Confederate camp.

Since his escape, Blue has become a regular member of the Confederate Army under the Confederate conscription law of April 16. He has become second lieutenant of Company D of the Eleventh Virginia Cavalry, commanded by Maj. Edward H. McDonald.

Booster Pump To Be Installed Next Week

Stored Water Will Fill Needs

WESTERNPORT — Mayor Ray L. Wilt announced at the council meeting held Monday evening, August 6 at the city building, that a new boster water pump will be installed next week at the woodyard of the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

The council decided it would be best to build up a sufficient water supply in the storage tank and reservoir this week in preparation for shut-off of water during the installation of the pump. The town will not be without water while the work is being done.

It is hoped that this new addition will boost the water supply for the town considerably.

The paving of Poplar, Rock and Johnson streets was completed the past week.

The contractor advised the Mayor and Commissioners that streets which are not curbed, even though allocated for paving this year, can not be done after September 15, because of cooler weather.

A letter from Timothy Kady advised the group that he has two trees for removal which the town may have for a community Christmas tree.

An adjustment was granted on the sewage and water bill, requested by Dr. William Lesh.

Rev. Eugene Ruane, assistant pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, was a visitor at the meeting. He stated that he was interested in the recreation facilities of the town.

Romney Was Beehive Of Civil War Action

Romney, the county seat of Hampshire County, which will observe its 200th anniversary today through Saturday, changed hands 56 times during the Civil War as Confederate and Federal troops battled through this part of the country.

On Easter Monday, April 21, 1862, John Blue, a resident of Romney, made a thrilling escape from the Wirgman Building where he was being held by Union soldiers for spying for the Confederacy.

The Valley News Echo April edition carried this dispatch taken from files of old papers of the time:

Romney, Va., April 30, 1862—John Blue, a citizen of this city, made a daring escape from his Federal captors on Easter Monday, April 21, and returned to the Confederate camp.

Blue, who was not a regular member of the Confederate Army at the time of his capture, had been active in spying on the Federal troops in and around this city, for the Rebels. He has become widely known in this area for his daring spying missions and for the valuable information turned over to the Confederates.

Late one night last month, Blue went to his father's house, about four miles from this city. Although the Federals were in occupation of the area and were looking for Blue, he "concluded that since no Yankees had been at father's house since Lauder left Romney, I could take a few hours rest and went to sleep."

A few hours later Blue awoke and found the house surrounded by Federal troops. He hid in the garrett but soon was discovered by Col. Stephen W. Downey. Blue, his father, and John Smith and Wesley Dike were taken prisoner and marched to this city. The four prisoners were searched, then Dike and Blue's father were set free. Blue and Smith were locked in a second story room of a building facing the main street, under guard.

During his imprisonment, Mrs. John C. Heiskell and several other ladies of this city brought furniture, blankets and warm meals to Blue for his comfort. He was carefully questioned by Downey, who offered Blue his freedom if he would take the oath of allegiance. Blue refused and plans were made to send him to the Federal prison at Wheeling.

On April 21, Blue seized his chance to escape. He was guarded by two corporals and four privates. With a weight he had carried in his pocket since he entered the building, he dispatched in the early morning hours the only member of his guard who was awake.

He seized the prostrate corporal's coat and gun, cautiously walked down the steps and out the building, and across the street, in front of about 50 Federal soldiers in front of the Court House.

Blue's escape was soon detected and the Federals immediately began to pursue him. Blue was on foot and it was difficult to conceal his tracks in the frozen snow. He did, however, manage to elude the Federals and eventually managed to return to the Confederate camp.

Since his escape, Blue has become a regular member of the Confederate Army under the Confederate conscription law of April 16. He has become second lieutenant of Company D of the Eleventh Virginia Cavalry, commanded by Maj. Edward H. McDonald.

Some Schools To Cover Windows

The theory is that children in ultramodern schools, featuring natural light and wide, wide windows, ignore their studies to watch what's going on outside. So in Michigan they're going to cover the windows of a school and see if youngsters learn faster.

Much high-powered research is going into the project, with the University of Michigan, the Ford Foundation and Educational Facilities Laboratories Inc. cooperating.

American public school methods could stand improvement, and so there must be receptivity for experiments designed to contribute to that end. All the same, one feels sympathy, if not concern, for children who will be cooped up inside blank walls with nothing to look at except teacher and the blackboard.

Perhaps most persons need better concentration on work at hand, but in the young enforced concentration can quickly lead to boredom. The experiment will show whether it is easier to learn in a room without a view, but whether the experimentees are going to be happy and comfortable is another question.

Meanwhile, nobody is talking about the possibility that if pupils have good teachers who make the learning process absorbing, they will do much less window gazing.

Our Money

Unquestionably the most serious problem that faces the United States today is our money—yours and mine. The law says that the dollar must be backed by 25 per cent gold. If the European countries continue to demand gold for dollars, we shall either have to take all gold protection away from the dollar or we shall be forced to refuse to give the Europeans gold for dollars. In either case, the value of the dollar will depreciate and we shall suffer a severe economic crisis.

There is no use arguing that gold is of no importance. The fact is that the world accepts gold as the yard-stick for measuring the value of currency. When some other yard-stick will become equally acceptable, then the other yard-stick will be significant.

When some of the Wall Street bankers suggest that we go off gold, they are asking for trouble. It is quite possible that Europe will drive us off the gold standard. The Europeans can do that if they insist on taking gold instead of dollars. It will not be the Communists who will bury us, but our former allies whom we assisted so beneficently after World War I and World War II.

The Europeans can do this by sending back the dollars we gave them or that they earned and demanding gold therefore. Their demands are growing so pressing that the supply is running short. Today, we pay $35 an ounce for gold; we shall probably have to pay $50 an ounce, in which case the dollar will be devalued. But devaluation is more sound than the elimination or even the reduction of our gold reserve.

When the United States or American bankers make new loans to foreign countries, no matter which countries, the indenture should contain a clause that they can only get gold for dollars at the price of gold at the moment that the loan is made. Interest and principle should be repaid at $35 an ounce. In a word, the Europeans must not be able to hold us up by demanding expensive gold for cheap dollars.

Our economic troubles started at the end of World War II when wisdom indicated that a ceiling should be put on prices, wages, dividends, rents, interest, everything until an adjustment could be made between the costly waste of war and the reconstruction of peace. Instead, two elements of the population, agriculture and labor, were selected for protection and special privileges. The soldiers, professional groups, middle class personnel, business enterprises, etc., were not equally protected.

Instead of meeting the economic problems head-on back in 1945 to 1948, as Bernard Baruch suggested, we issued short term obligations which are now a plague upon us. The problem was handled politically, not economically.

It is difficult to get a fair estimate, but we probably lost over $100,000,000,000 (billion) in our world-saving effort. We did not have the money to lose. We do not have it now. During the 1960 campaign, John F. Kennedy made an issue of the economy. He found it stalemated and he demanded that it be got moving. Kennedy's diagnosis that the American economy was sick and stalemated was correct, but his problem was not growth as much as that we were over-produced and that we would have to have a good old-fashioned "fire-sale."

It is difficult to find a solution to the fiscal problem, except to confess to our mistakes and to recognize that our domestic situations cannot be solved until the Berlin question is solved so that the cost of impending war can be reduced. We cannot afford to continue to pay for the preparation for war and at the same time maintain the value of our currency and do all the things we would like to do.

This involves a very serious dilemma for President Kennedy. If any solution is found over Berlin by compromise, the President will be accused of being soft on Communism. In fact, it will be suggested that he favors a "no win" policy. If, on the other hand, he does not find a solution to the Berlin question, we shall go broke preparing for war.

Federal Grand Jury To Investigate Application To Market Thalidomide

By Jack Anderson

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson is on vacation. In his absence, the Washington Merry-Go-Round will be written by his associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON—A federal grand jury has asked the Food and Drug administration for its files on thalidomide, the tragic, ten-cent sleeping pill which has caused heart-breaking deformities in babies.

The grand jury reportedly is taking a stern look at the William S. Merrell Company's application to peddle the pills in this country. The Cincinnati firm not only brought relentless pressure upon Food and Drug to release thalidomide, but kept up the campaign long after doctors had blamed the drug for the deformed-baby epidemic in Europe.

Not until three months after thalidomide sales had been stopped in Germany and England did the Merrell Company grudgingly withdraw its application.

The same grand jury is also investigating another Merrell product, an anti-cholesterol drug called MER-29, which was withdrawn from the market after doctors discovered it caused eye cataracts, skin disorders, and other frightening side effects.

Among the victims who developed eye cataracts after taking MER-29, ironically, was a Justice Department attorney, Isiah Matlack (though he isn't certain the drug was the cause).

Although Dr. Frances Kelsey already has been credited with blocking the sale of thalidomide in this country, the full story hasn't been told of the pressures that the Merrell Company rought to bear upon her.

Because she believes manufacturers should have the right to be heard, she has been careful not to complain. However, once the company even threatened to sue her, because she was holding up its thalidomide application.

After company representatives had appealed to Food and Drug for the 22nd time, Dr. Kelsey still would not be budged. Angrily, they accused her on May 9, 1961, of writing them a "somewhat libelous" letter and threatened to take her to court.

All told, the Merrell firm made 50 approaches to Food and Drug. But none of their desperate, determined appeals got past Dr. Kelsey, a plain, trim woman, who wears no make-up and works in a drab, bare-floored office.

This quietly heroic bureaucrat, her manner as modest as her appearance, kept demanding reports and studies and explanations until her doubts about thalidomide were dramatically proven.

Except for her determination, the drug would have gone on the American market two years ago under the present lax laws. This happens to be the same period of time that Tennessee Sen. Estes Kefauver has been battling to get stricter controls imposed on dangerous drugs.

But the drug companies, in open alliance with Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen and Nebraska Sen Roman Hruska, have managed to block Kefauver's reforms.

Personal File

TIP TO PRESIDENT KENNEDY: Your defense chiefs are about to send you a "capabilities study," supposedly proving that our conventional forces alone can hold off the combined military might of Russia and China. I suggest you check closely on the "terms of reference," or assumptions, upon which the study is based. You will find that only the most optimistic intelligence estimates were used. The pessimistic reports, which many generals regard as more realistic, were ignored.

TIP TO WALTER WINCHELL: You have far understated the number of people who have been pushed into Attorney General Robert Kennedy's swimming pool. Seldom a week goes by that dozens don't get dunked. For Kennedy turns his pool over to pushing, sucffling, splashing orphan kids five days a week.

TIP TO THE PERUVIAN EMBASSY: Your government's campaign against American ambassador James Loeb won't get back your withdrawn economic aid. Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the powerful No. Two man in the Senate leadership, has threatened privately to block any future aid for Peru unless Loeb remains asambassador.

Hot-Rod Congressman

Unlike Senators, House members do not have a shuttle train to whisk them from their offices to the chamber. But some of the older members, like New Jersey Congressman Jim Auchincloss, drive their own motor scooter cars.

The 77-year-old Republican, a genial man, usually jokes with pedestrian colleagues and Capitol workmen while he hot-rods back and forth in the huge underground passageway between the House the office buildings.

But recently, his way was obstructed by a roadblock of printed material. Auchincloss tried to barge through, but his motor-scooter stalled.

"I'm sorry, Congressman," said a workman, as he cleared a path for Auchincloss through the jungle of printed matter.

"You men will have to keep this corridor cleared," replied Auchincloss cheerfully. "Don't you know it's illegal to prevent a Congressman from getting to his seat in the chamber?"

Why U.S. Doesn't Recognize Peruvian Regime

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The policy of the United States in withholding for the time being diplomatic recognition of the military junta in Peru, which by revolution took charge of the government in Lima, recently, has back of it notable precedents of several decades ago. For if recognition had been granted impulsively in Peru, the Washington government would have been placed in the position of favoring change by military force.

Various dictatorships in Latin America in recent years have been accorded prompt recognition by the United States. Some means had to be employed, therefore, by Secretary Rusk to prevent the impression from being developed that this country favors all revolutionary uprisings, even when, as in Peru, the outcome of an election doesn't suit one of the defeated political parties.

But it is beginning to look as if the United States will in due time extend recognition to the new regime in Peru. Certain things, however, have to happen first. There must be evidence of stability and of popular approval and of a program that will bring a new election when things have quieted down.

The military group which took over in Lima is anti-radical, while the party which won the election is leftish. The military men say the election was fradulent. They criticize the United States ambassador, James Loeb, for allegedly exhibiting during the campaign signs of sympathy with the leftist crowd, though he denies the charges.

Going back over the years, the problem of extending or withholding recogntion in Latin-American countries has been a vexatious one. Prior to the adimnistration of President Woodrow Wilson in 1913, the tendency of the State Department here was to be pragmatic about it. If a regime had complete possession of the country, it was accepted as a de facto government, irrespective of how it had obtained power. But Mr. Wilson was outraged when General Victoriano Huerta, head of the army, seized the reins of government in Mexico after assassinating the legally elected President, Francisco Madero, and his Vice President, Pino Suarez.

The United States took the position that it wouldn't recognize any government in Latin America which had come into power through the use of force. While the Huerta regime was recognized by the British and other European governments, the United States adopted a policy of what was officially called "watchful waiting." Failure to get Washington's support caused the military regime to lose strength, and Huerta resigned in 1914.

Gradually, under succeeding administrations, the Washington government came to be less and less critical of the method employed provided the popular will was somehow expressed in favor of the emerging regime.

It will be recalled that in 1959 when Batista was overthrown by Castro in Cuba, the United States did recognize the new regime. Later recognition was withdrawn when United States property was arbitrarily confiscated without any assurance of real compensation being given.

It is, of course, argued in the press of Latin America that the United States, by withholding recognition in Peru, is attempting to intervene in the internal affairs of a Latin-American country. The United States really has had no such purpose. It is not so much concerned with internal political problems today as with the question of whether a weakened government can be infilitrated and taken over by the Communists. That is why foreign aid has had to be suspended, at least temporarily until the real trend can be ascertained.

The policy of the United States government is based primarily on its own security, and hence it has to judge whether a new regime might be a source of friction in the hemisphere and perhaps produce externally an impact which could be damaging to this and to other countries.

If, for instance, a government emerged in any Latin-American country which by its programs endangered the lives and properties of the citizens of European countries, there has always been a risk that those citizens' own governments might feel justified in taking military steps to secure the rights of their nationals. The United States, therefore, has determined to avert complications that might require enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine as against European intervention. The best way devised has been to support governments in Latin America which by their deeds and programs seem to give promise of a continuing respect for international obligations.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

YOUNG POLITICIAN — Politics is a full time job. Ask any member of the House or Senate and he'll tell you that he must always consider how his actions will be received back home. It follows, then, that a politician's home is never really free of day-to-day political discussion.

Take Rep. Armistead I. Selden, one of the eight congressmen who survived the Alabama statewide primary. Due to the 1960 census count, Alabama is scheduled to lose one of its nine congressmen, and in the absence of redistricting legislation, the state had to drop one of them in a state-wide primary election.

Representative Selden must have talked nothing but politics for weeks, both at home and out in the hustings, and his 9-year-old son, Inge, must have drunk it all in.

The other day, Selden came across a political speech, scrawled by his son, which showed that the young lad absorbed what he heard around the house. Inge's speech read:

"Ladies and gentlemen: It is a great honor to be here tonight. I hope you will include me in your eight. The plates will cost $20 each but, of course, it will be a good supper. My wife is going to cook it. Thank you."

Selden now regrets he didn't have his son campaign for him. He considers the speech short, to the point, and more truthful than most political harangues.

UNDECIDED — At about this time each year, the White House usually issues its over-all view of what the 1964 federal budget should be like. It's true that that budget year doesn't begin until July 1, 1963, almost a year away, but the departments and agencies of government must begin their planning work in time for the budget to be completed by late December.

This year, however, things are a bit stuck. The White House, et al, have been hemming and hawing over the ifs and how muches of a tax cut, leaving the budget makers holding empty money-bags.

Single Injury Not Likely To Cause Cancer

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A 34-year-old woman was thrown while riding a mule. The animal kicked her in the thigh, hard enough to leave his imprint and cut the skin. The area was black and blue the next day due to hemorrhage under the skin.

The injury healed but, two months later, the woman noted a small pea-sized lump in the scar. The lesion was not considered serious at first, but when it continued to grow, the physician recommended removal. It proved to be malignant.

We hear so much about trauma causing cancer but bonafide cases are uncommon. Some women injure the breast, for example, and find a tumor on the following day. The lump was there but it took the accident to bring it to her attention.

Physicians are most reluctant to blame this cause without definite proof that the lesion did not exist before. In addition, the accident must be severe enough to damage the tissues, the lesion must develop within a reasonable time thereafter, and it must be the type of tumor that conceivably could result from trauma.

It is agreed generally that cancer originates from cells in the body that have been changed by some chemical, hormonal, or viral incident. The change takes place in the chromosomes. Once this happens (mutation) the normal cells do not produce the same type of cells but divide into cells that vary considerably from the parent structures. The newcomers are different and are regarded as cancerous when they multiply at an abnormal rate and spread in a lawless fashion.

Chronic injury or irritation, with repeated repair of the damaged tissues, is a more likely cause of malignant cell mutation than is a single injury.

REACTION TO SUN

E. F. writes: Have you any suggestions for a farmer who must work in the sun? He is blue eyed and light complexioned and gets severe headaches that cause vomiting whenever he is exposed to the sun in hot weather.

REPLY

He ought to get a new job or farm in the north unless he can work in the shade on hot days. Many farmers use umbrellas on their tractors, dress properly, and relax during the midday heat. Additional fluids and salt help when sweating is profuse.

INDUCED INSANITY

N. M. writes: I watched a show on TV the other night where the wife was feeding her husband pills to make him lose his mind. Would this be possible in real life? I don't aim to do such a thing to my husband but am curious.

REPLY

Yes. Certain chemicals produce hallucinations, depression, or other symptoms of mental disorders. They are not recommended for this purpose but the author of the play you mentioned doesn't tell where the sinister wife obtatined the pills.

DROPSY

A. F. writes: What is meant by retaining water in the system?

REPLY

This is a dropsical condition in which the fluid of the body is retained by the tissues in much the same way as a sponge holds water. In many instances, there is an excessive amount of salt in the tissues that attracts water.

MORNING TEA

E. P. writes: After my morning tea I get diarrhea — have to go four or five times in a row. Does this come from the tea or from nervousness? I'm a very tense person.

REPLY

Stop the tea and see. This might help your nervousness also.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

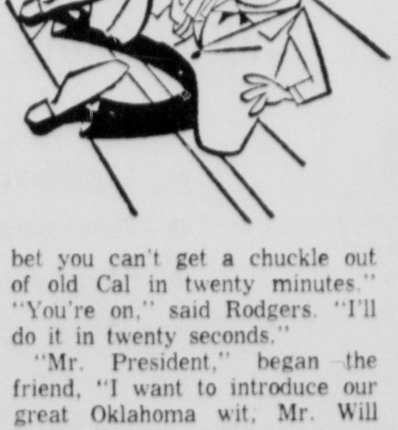
Millionaire Inventor Philip K. Saunders has written the story of his unusual life in "Dr. Panto Fogo," a nickname he acquired one day when his trousers caught fire while he was taking a nap aboard a slow train in Brazil. A few of Mr. Saunders' passing comments bear repetition: (1) Laziness is the mother of nine inventions out of ten. (2) French food is not really good food. It is mediocre food cunningly cooked and disguised with sauces. (3) Africans never talk about sex because there are no sex taboos of any kind and therefore nothing about sex calls for any comment except the expression of approval.



John Straley now orders his cook to mix pancake batter with alphabet soup, so that when he entertains big shots he can give them monogramed flapjacks.

When Will Rogers confessed that he never had met then-President Calvin Coolidge, a friend marched him right over to the White House, commenting, "I'll bet you can't get a chuckle out of old Cal in twenty minutes."

"You're on," said Rodgers. "I'll do it in twenty seconds."

"Mr. President," began the friend, "I want to introduce our great Oklahoma wit, Mr. Will Rogers."

Will held out his hand, frowned, and said, "Excuse me, please, but I didn't quite get the name."

Coolidge laughed out loud—and the friend paid the bet!

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

"Can you be here two o'clock?" he said. Yes, I said. I wasn't due at the office until 7 p. m. so two would be fine. He said "See you," and hung up. This was a warmish day in the Thirties. It was a dismal time of desperate men and hungry children, a time when a father would sell his pride for a couple of dollars.

I arrived at the old Park Central Hotel, at 1:50 and found the room. Jerry Wald opened the door. He was a fat kid who worked for the Evening Graphic, I worked on The Mirror. He was five years younger than I, but he had moved much faster. He had a radio column. I wrote picture captions.

"What's the excitement?" I said. He had big dark eyes, and black hair which looked as though he had slept in it. He drew an imaginary line with his hand. "We're at the crossroads, Jim. Today both of us begin a new career."

I sat. The room had two stuffed chairs, a coffee table, a small desk against a wall, and a bed. Wald had a faculty for turning on the excitement and turning it off, at will. Mostly, it depended on the echo he felt from his audience. He got a cool one from me.

I used to meet him in Lindy's and La Hiff's. He fancied himself as a newer Winchell, running from one Broadway spot to another, always asking questions and jotting notes. Jerry Wald had two horses pulling him at all times — ambition and talent — but he never held the reins. They were runaways.

"We're going to Hollywood," he said. I smiled. "We are?" I said. He kept to the center of the rug. "I got some news. Don't crack to anybody. I got fired from The Graphic." "You got what?" "Canned. That place is lousy with jealousy. They said I offended Lucky Strike. You know, criticizing their program."

"That's a good start," I said. Jerry grinned. He had a rich, captivating one. "So who cares?" he said. "How much does The Mirror pay you?" "Sixty." "How would you like to make six hundred a week? Pretty good, hah? Okay. We're both going to Hollywood."

"Not me," I said. The smile died. "Don't be a ——," he said, using a Yiddish word. "You can write. I can talk. We go to Hollywood. I get the contracts. You write the scenarios. We split down the middle. We'll live like kings." I asked him if he had a contract in Hollywood — someone who would give us a job.

"Who needs it?" he said. "We go out cold. We'll kill 'em." I gave it a lot of thought — about four seconds. "Nothing doing," I said. "I wasn't fired, Jerry. You were. I got sixty coming in every week and a wife who can't add the stubs in a checkbook. I'm staying in the newspaper business."

We talked a little more, but the excitement had left his voice. We parted friends. He asked me not to say anything. I didn't. Years afterward, when I was earning $75 a week, I used to take Ginny and Gayle to the movies and we sat, with bags full of Mounds and Hershey bars and popcorn, watching the title of the picture and then — two stories high — "Produced by Jerry Wald."

He became rich and famous. Among his many successes were Mildred Pierce, From Here to Eternity and The Man Who Came to Dinner. Jerry talked of art, but he was primarily interested in success and money. He complained of ruthlessness in an industry full of bodies over which Wald climbed on his way to the top.

I saw him a few years ago and he ushered me into a palatial private office. He was producing Peyton Place, which might have been a comedy on sex. "Well," he said, when we were alone, "are you sorry you didn't do it, putz?" I said no. Jerry laughed heartily. If I wasn't sorry, then I was nuttier than he had thought.

He had taste. He didn't compare our earnings. We talked of other days and, for a moment, he felt toward newspaper work as a man might about an old love who betrayed him. He still spoke swiftly and plausibly, and he could put the excitement in the tone, or remove it.

"We got to get together soon," he said. "I mean for a real talk." I nodded and started toward the exit. We wouldn't have that talk. I knew it. He knew it.

A few weeks ago, Jerry died of a heart attack. Some people can't believe a producer has one. . .

U. S. pigs today are healthier though they eat only 38 per cent as much as their ancestors did a couple of generations ago, according to a magazine article. When it comes to dieting, it means our porkers go whole hog!

"Other Nations Pay Off U. S. Aid With Criticism"—newspaper headline. That's news? What else did you expect!

Four new nation-wide eating societies, with rapidly spreading membership rolls, have sprung up within the last year. Also, there are scores of new books on how and what to eat and drink on the market, a survey shows. Sure gives us food for thought!

Many financial writers, we note, blame the small investors for the recent stock market plunge. Always blaming the little guy!

All of Colorado has an elevation of 3,000 feet or better, according to our office atlas. Among the states it sure ranks high!

Although Dr. Frances Kelsey already has been credited with blocking the sale of thalidomide in this country, the full story hasn't been told of the pressures that the Merrell Company rought to bear upon her.

Because she believes manufacturers should have the right to be heard, she has been careful not to complain. However, once the company even threatened to sue her, because she was holding up its thalidomide application.

After company representatives had appealed to Food and Drug for the 22nd time, Dr. Kelsey still would not be budged. Angrily, they accused her on May 9, 1961, of writing them a "somewhat libelous" letter and threatened to take her to court.

All told, the Merrell firm made 50 approaches to Food and Drug. But none of their desperate, determined appeals got past Dr. Kelsey, a plain, trim woman, who wears no make-up and works in a drab, bare-floored office.

This quietly heroic bureaucrat, her manner as modest as her appearance, kept demanding reports and studies and explanations until her doubts about thalidomide were dramatically proven.

Except for her determination, the drug would have gone on the American market two years ago under the present lax laws. This happens to be the same period of time that Tennessee Sen. Estes Kefauver has been battling to get stricter controls imposed on dangerous drugs.

But the drug companies, in open alliance with Illinois Sen. Everett Dirksen and Nebraska Sen Roman Hruska, have managed to block Kefauver's reforms.

TIP TO PRESIDENT KENNEDY: Your defense chiefs are about to send you a "capabilities study," supposedly proving that our conventional forces alone can hold off the combined military might of Russia and China. I suggest you check closely on the "terms of reference," or assumptions, upon which the study is based. You will find that only the most optimistic intelligence estimates were used. The pessimistic reports, which many generals regard as more realistic, were ignored.

TIP TO WALTER WINCHELL: You have far understated the number of people who have been pushed into Attorney General Robert Kennedy's swimming pool. Seldom a week goes by that dozens don't get dunked. For Kennedy turns his pool over to pushing, sucffling, splashing orphan kids five days a week.

TIP TO THE PERUVIAN EMBASSY: Your government's campaign against American ambassador James Loeb won't get back your withdrawn economic aid. Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey, the powerful No. Two man in the Senate leadership, has threatened privately to block any future aid for Peru unless Loeb remains asambassador.

Hot-Rod Congressman

Unlike Senators, House members do not have a shuttle train to whisk them from their offices to the chamber. But some of the older members, like New Jersey Congressman Jim Auchincloss, drive their own motor scooter cars.

The 77-year-old Republican, a genial man, usually jokes with pedestrian colleagues and Capitol workmen while he hot-rods back and forth in the huge underground passageway between the House the office buildings.

But recently, his way was obstructed by a roadblock of printed material. Auchincloss tried to barge through, but his motor-scooter stalled.

"I'm sorry, Congressman," said a workman, as he cleared a path for Auchincloss through the jungle of printed matter.

"You men will have to keep this corridor cleared," replied Auchincloss cheerfully. "Don't you know it's illegal to prevent a Congressman from getting to his seat in the chamber?"

Why U.S. Doesn't Recognize Peruvian Regime

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — The policy of the United States in withholding for the time being diplomatic recognition of the military junta in Peru, which by revolution took charge of the government in Lima, recently, has back of it notable precedents of several decades ago. For if recognition had been granted impulsively in Peru, the Washington government would have been placed in the position of favoring change by military force.

Various dictatorships in Latin America in recent years have been accorded prompt recognition by the United States. Some means had to be employed, therefore, by Secretary Rusk to prevent the impression from being developed that this country favors all revolutionary uprisings, even when, as in Peru, the outcome of an election doesn't suit one of the defeated political parties.

But it is beginning to look as if the United States will in due time extend recognition to the new regime in Peru. Certain things, however, have to happen first. There must be evidence of stability and of popular approval and of a program that will bring a new election when things have quieted down.

The military group which took over in Lima is anti-radical, while the party which won the election is leftish. The military men say the election was fradulent. They criticize the United States ambassador, James Loeb, for allegedly exhibiting during the campaign signs of sympathy with the leftist crowd, though he denies the charges.

Going back over the years, the problem of extending or withholding recogntion in Latin-American countries has been a vexatious one. Prior to the adimnistration of President Woodrow Wilson in 1913, the tendency of the State Department here was to be pragmatic about it. If a regime had complete possession of the country, it was accepted as a de facto government, irrespective of how it had obtained power. But Mr. Wilson was outraged when General Victoriano Huerta, head of the army, seized the reins of government in Mexico after assassinating the legally elected President, Francisco Madero, and his Vice President, Pino Suarez.

The United States took the position that it wouldn't recognize any government in Latin America which had come into power through the use of force. While the Huerta regime was recognized by the British and other European governments, the United States adopted a policy of what was officially called "watchful waiting." Failure to get Washington's support caused the military regime to lose strength, and Huerta resigned in 1914.

Gradually, under succeeding administrations, the Washington government came to be less and less critical of the method employed provided the popular will was somehow expressed in favor of the emerging regime.

It will be recalled that in 1959 when Batista was overthrown by Castro in Cuba, the United States did recognize the new regime. Later recognition was withdrawn when United States property was arbitrarily confiscated without any assurance of real compensation being given.

It is, of course, argued in the press of Latin America that the United States, by withholding recognition in Peru, is attempting to intervene in the internal affairs of a Latin-American country. The United States really has had no such purpose. It is not so much concerned with internal political problems today as with the question of whether a weakened government can be infiltrated and taken over by the Communists. That is why foreign aid has had to be suspended, at least temporarily until the real trend can be ascertained.

The policy of the United States government is based primarily on its own security, and hence it has to judge whether a new regime might be a source of friction in the hemisphere and perhaps produce externally an impact which could be damaging to this and to other countries.

If, for instance, a government emerged in any Latin-American country which by its programs endangered the lives and properties of the citizens of European countries, there has always been a risk that those citizens' own governments might feel justified in taking military steps to secure the rights of their nationals. The United States, therefore, has determined to avert complications that might require enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine as against European intervention. The best way devised has been to support governments in Latin America which by their deeds and programs seem to give promise of a continuing respect for international obligations.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

YOUNG POLITICIAN — Politics is a full time job. Ask any member of the House or Senate and he'll tell you that he must always consider how his actions will be received back home. It follows, then, that a politician's home is never really free of day-to-day political discussion.

Take Rep. Armistead I. Selden, one of the eight congressmen who survived the Alabama statewide primary. Due to the 1960 census count, Alabama is scheduled to lose one of its nine congressmen, and in the absence of redistricting legislation, the state had to drop one of them in a state-wide primary election.

Representative Selden must have talked nothing but politics for weeks, both at home and out in the hustings, and his 9-year-old son, Inge, must have drunk it all in.

The other day, Selden came across a political speech, scrawled by his son, which showed that the young lad absorbed what he heard around the house. Inge's speech read:

"Ladies and gentlemen: It is a great honor to be here tonight. I hope you will include me in your eight. The plates will cost $20 each but, of course, it will be a good supper. My wife is going to cook it. Thank you."

Selden now regrets he didn't have his son campaign for him. He considers the speech short, to the point, and more truthful than most political harangues.

UNDECIDED — At about this time each year, the White House usually issues its over-all view of what the 1964 federal budget should be like. It's true that that budget year doesn't begin until July 1, 1963, almost a year away, but the departments and agencies of government must begin their planning work in time for the budget to be completed by late December.

This year, however, things are a bit stuck. The White House, et al, have been hemming and hawing over the ifs and how muches of a tax cut, leaving the budget makers holding empty money-bags.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

"Can you be here two o'clock?" he said. Yes, I said. I wasn't due at the office until 7 p. m. so two would be fine. He said "See you," and hung up. This was a warmish day in the Thirties. It was a dismal time of desperate men and hungry children, a time when a father would sell his pride for a couple of dollars.

I arrived at the old Park Central Hotel, at 1:50 and found the room. Jerry Wald opened the door. He was a fat kid who worked for the Evening Graphic, I worked on The Mirror. He was five years younger than I, but he had moved much faster. He had a radio column. I wrote picture captions.

"What's the excitement?" I said. He had big dark eyes, and black hair which looked as though he had slept in it. He drew an imaginary line with his hand. "We're at the crossroads, Jim. Today both of us begin a new career."

I sat. The room had two stuffed chairs, a coffee table, a small desk against a wall, and a bed. Wald had a faculty for turning on the excitement and turning it off, at will. Mostly, it depended on the echo he felt from his audience. He got a cool one from me.

I used to meet him in Lindy's and La Hiff's. He fancied himself as a newer Winchell, running from one Broadway spot to another, always asking questions and jotting notes. Jerry Wald had two horses pulling him at all times — ambition and talent — but he never held the reins. They were runaways.

"We're going to Hollywood," he said. I smiled. "We are?" I said. He kept to the center of the rug. "I got some news. Don't crack to anybody. I got fired from The Graphic," "You got what?" "Canned. That place is lousy with jealousy. They said I offended Lucky Strike. You know, criticizing their program."

"That's a good start," I said. Jerry grinned. He had a rich, captivating one. "So who cares?" he said. "How much does The Mirror pay you?" "Sixty." "How would you like to make six hundred a week? Pretty good, hah? Okay. We're both going to Hollywood."

"Not me," I said. The smile died. "Don't be a ——," he said, using a Yiddish word. "You can write. I can talk. We go to Hollywood. I get the contracts. You write the scenarios. We split down the middle. We'll live like kings." I asked him if he had a contract in Hollywood — someone who would give us a job.

"Who needs it?" he said. "We go out cold. We'll kill 'em." I gave it a lot of thought — about four seconds. "Nothing doing," I said. "I wasn't fired, Jerry. You were. I got sixty coming in every week and a wife who can't add the stubs in a checkbook. I'm staying in the newspaper business."

We talked a little more, but the excitement had left his voice. We parted friends. He asked me not to say anything. I didn't. Years afterward, when I was earning $75 a week, I used to take Ginny and Gayle to the movies and we sat, with bags full of Mounds and Hershey bars and popcorn, watching the title of the picture and then — two stories high — "Produced by Jerry Wald."

He became rich and famous. Among his many successes were Mildred Pierce, From Here to Eternity and The Man Who Came to Dinner. Jerry talked of art, but he was primarily interested in success and money. He complained of ruthlessness in an industry full of bodies over which Wald climbed on his way to the top.

I saw him a few years ago and he ushered me into a palatial private office. He was producing Peyton Place, which might have been a comedy on sex. "Well," he said, when we were alone, "are you sorry you didn't do it, putz?" I said no. Jerry laughed heartily. If I wasn't sorry, then I was nuttier than he had thought.

He had taste: He didn't compare our earnings. We talked of other days and, for a moment, he felt toward newspaper work as a man might about an old love who betrayed him. He still spoke swiftly and plausibly, and he could put the excitement in the tone, or remove it.

"We got to get together soon," he said. "I mean for a real talk." I nodded and started toward the exit. We wouldn't have that talk. I knew it. He knew it.

A few weeks ago, Jerry died of a heart attack. Some people can't believe a producer has one. . .

Single Injury Not Likely To Cause Cancer

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A 34-year-old woman was thrown while riding a mule. The animal kicked her in the thigh, hard enough to leave his imprint and cut the skin. The area was black and blue the next day due to hemorrhage under the skin.

The injury healed but, two months later, the woman noted a small pea-sized lump in the scar. The lesion was not considered serious at first, but when it continued to grow, the physician recommended removal. It proved to be malignant.

We hear so much about trauma causing cancer but bonafide cases are uncommon. Some women injure the breast, for example, and find a tumor on the following day. The lump was there but it took the accident to bring it to her attention.

Physicians are most reluctant to blame this cause without definite proof that the lesion did not exist before. In addition, the accident must be severe enough to damage the tissues, the lesion must develop within a reasonable time thereafter, and it must be the type of tumor that conceivably could result from trauma.

It is agreed generally that cancer originates from cells in the body that have been changed by some chemical, hormonal, or viral incident. The change takes place in the chromosomes. Once this happens (mutation) the normal cells do not produce the same type of cells but divide into cells that vary considerably from the parent structures. The newcomers are different and are regarded as cancerous when they multiply at an abnormal rate and spread in a lawless fashion.

Chronic injury or irritation, with repeated repair of the damaged tissues, is a more likely cause of malignant cell mutation than is a single injury.

REACTION TO SUN

E. F. writes: Have you any suggestions for a farmer who must work in the sun? He is blue eyed and light complexioned and gets severe headaches that cause vomiting whenever he is exposed to the sun in hot weather.

REPLY

He ought to get a new job or farm in the north unless he can work in the shade on hot days. Many farmers use umbrellas on their tractors, dress properly, and relax during the midday heat. Additional fluids and salt help when sweating is profuse.

INDUCED INSANITY

N. M. writes: I watched a show on TV the other night where the wife was feeding her husband pills to make him lose his mind. Would this be possible in real life? I don't aim to do such a thing to my husband but am curious.

REPLY

Yes. Certain chemicals produce hallucinations, depression, or other symptoms of mental disorders. They are not recommended for this purpose but the author of the play you mentioned doesn't tell where the sinister wife obtatined the pills.

DROPSY

A. F. writes: What is meant by retaining water in the system?

REPLY

This is a dropsical condition in which the fluid of the body is retained by the tissues in much the same way as a sponge holds water. In many instances, there is an excessive amount of salt in the tissues that attracts water.

MORNING TEA

E. P. writes: After my morning tea I get diarrhea — have to go four or five times in a row. Does this come from the tea or from nervousness? I'm a very tense person.

REPLY

Stop the tea and see. This might help your nervousness also.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

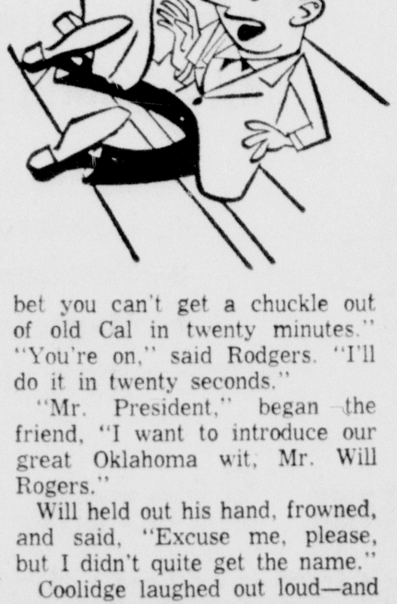
Millionaire Inventor Philip K. Saunders has written the story of his unusual life in "Dr. Panto Fogo," a nickname he acquired one day when his trousers caught fire while he was taking a nap aboard a slow train in Brazil. A few of Mr. Saunders' passing comments bear repetition: (1) Laziness is the mother of nine inventions out of ten. (2) French food is not really good food. It is mediocre food cunningly cooked and disguised with sauces. (3) Africans never talk about sex because there are no sex taboos of any kind and therefore nothing about sex calls for any comment except the expression of approval.

John Straley now orders his cook to mix pancake batter with alphabet soup, so that when he entertains big shots he can give them monogramed flapjacks.



When Will Rogers confessed that he never had met then-President Calvin Coolidge, a friend marched him right over to the White House, commenting, "I'll bet you can't get a chuckle out of old Cal in twenty minutes." "You're on," said Rodgers. "I'll do it in twenty seconds."

"Mr. President," began the friend, "I want to introduce our great Oklahoma wit, Mr. Will Rogers."

Will held out his hand, frowned, and said, "Excuse me, please, but I didn't quite get the name."

Coolidge laughed out loud—and the friend paid the bet!

Yankees Clobber Minnesota, 14-1, Tony Kubek Hits 3-Run Homer

Ralph Terry Notches 16th Win Of Year

Tresh Belts Pair, Howard Gets 4 Hits, Pascual Is Loser

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tony Kubek celebrated his return to the New York Yankees' lineup Tuesday with a three-run homer his first time up and Tom Tresh, his rookie replacement, belted two homers in a 14-1 massacre of the Minnesota Twins.

Kubek, Tresh, and Elston Howard each drove in three runs apiece as the Yankees hammered loser Camilo Pascual for five runs in the first inning and then rallied for seven more in the seventh to snap a three-game losing streak.

The vigorous 18-hit attack by the Yankees boosted their American League lead to five games and helped righthander Ralph Terry coast to his 16th victory, which equalled his entire victory total of last year. Terry allowed five hits, three of them by Zoile Versalles.

Kubek, who last played for the Yankees in the 1961 World Series against the Cincinnati Reds, rejoined the club last Friday following nine months service in the Army and was installed in left field Tuesday in somewhat of a surprise move by manager Ralph Houk.

Kubek admitted he was "a little nervous" when he came to bat for the first time in the opening frame with the Yanks already ahead, 2-0, and two men on.

Pascual's first pitch to Kubek was a called strike but Tony lashed out at the second one and drove it 360 feet into the lower right field stands to complete the five-run rally.

Tresh, who took over Kubek's old shortstop position this season, hit his 11th homer in the second inning with the bases empty and his 12th with one on capped the seven-run explosion in the seventh.

Pascual, troubled by a sore elbow recently, was raked for six runs and five hits during the two innings he pitched. The defeat was his seventh compared with 15 victories.

Four-Run Fourth Wins For Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Herbert shut out the Baltimore Orioles on three hits Tuesday as the Chicago White Sox clustered all their runs in the fourth inning to sweep the two-game series with a 4-0 victory.

Herbert had a perfect game until two were out in the sixth inning when he walked Dick Hall, Baltimore's starting and losing pitcher.

He had a no-hitter intact until Russ Snyder opened the seventh with a sharp single to center field.

Boog Powell singled in the eighth and Charlie Law in the ninth for the other two Oriole hits.

In both cases double plays erased the hitters.

The White Sox got all their runs on five singles in the fourth, Al Smith and Camilo Carreon each getting a two-run hit.

Curl's Camera Shop lengthened its lead to 1½ games in the Rec Baseball League by downing Gurley's yesterday at Stitcher Field by the score of 7-5, and can win the pennant by taking one of its two remaining contests.

Frank Williams went the distance for Curl's and turned in a six-hit performance in making his season record 3-0.

Jim Willis paced Curl's 11-hit assault with a double and two singles while Terry Lease smacked a pair of two-baggers, Harold Hardinger and Bob Lowe had two singles each and Williams had a two-base hit. Homer Hardinger excelled at short for the victors.

Jim Graham larruped a two-run triple in the sixth and Don Wagner and John Sloan rapped doubles for the losers.

Paul Davis' single in the first inning was the lone safety credited to Shipping.

Curing Room amassed 12 hits, ten of which were shared by five players. Todd Cuthbertson blasted a triple and single, George Barb and Paul Loar had a double and single each and Mike Lease and Joe Carter garnered a pair of base knocks apiece.

The win gave Curing Room a 11-6 record. League leading 51-A is 11-5. Score:

Angels Explode In 9th Inning, Beat Bosox, 3-1

Bob Rodgers' Hit Key Blow In 3-Run Rally

BOSTON (UPI) — Catcher Bob Rodgers' bases-loaded single in the ninth inning Tuesday gave the Los Angeles Angels a 3-1 victory over Earl Wilson and the Boston Red Sox.

Rodgers' game-winning hit came off Boston reliefer Arnold Earley who had replaced Wilson after Bill Moran singled and Lee Thomas walked with one out in the ninth.

Earley threw a wild pitch to advance the runners and walked slugger Leon Wagner to load the bases before giving up the Rodgers' hit. Boston's ace rookie fireman Dick Radatz, who had been warmed up when Earley was called in, took over after the Rodgers hit to give up a sacrifice fly and end the inning on a pop-up.

Wilson and the Red Sox had a 1-0 lead over Angel starter Bo Belinsky on Ed Bressoud's double and Bob Tillman's single in the fourth inning. Belinsky was relieved after seven and Los Angeles reliefer Dan Osinski gained credit for his second victory by allowing only one hit over the last two innings.

Until the starters were relieved the game was reminiscent of Wilson's 2-0 o-hit victory over Belinsky and the Angels here last June 26. Wilson allowed just six hits in the 8 1-3 innings he worked while Belinsky gave up just three hits in the 7 innings he pitched.

Giants Nip Phils, 4-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, with Orlando Cepeda doubling in the go-ahead run, came from behind Tuesday to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2, and win their fourth straight game.

Cepeda's smash to right center field highlighted a three-run rally in the sixth inning at the expense of righthander Art Mahaffey, who was seeking his seventh consecutive victory.

Harvey Kuenn opened the inning with his fifth homer of the year to tie the score 2-2. Chuck Hiller followed with a double and after Willie Mays had lined out to center field Cepeda brought Hiller around with another two-bagger.

Shortstop Ruben Amaro committed an error on the throw-in that allowed Cepeda to gain third from where he scored on Felipe Alou's sacrifice fly.

Dan Indians Gain Division Finals, Top Dodgers, 1-0

The Indians edged the Dodgers, 1-0, yesterday at Dapper Dan Field on Leiper Street to gain the Dan Division playoff finals of the Dapper Dan Little League as Ralph Leasure outdueled loser Poncho Klosterman in the "sudden death" single-game meeting.

Ricky Kincaid's two-out single scored Jimmy Spangler with the game's lone run in the second inning and Leasure made the tally stand up as he notched his seventh straight pitching win this season.

The hard-throwing righthander held the Dodgers to one hit—a first-inning two-out single by George Geatz—and struck out six as he went the distance for the eighth time this year.

Spangler opened the winning rally by singling with two out and he went to third on Larry Sloan's two-bagger. Kincaid then came through with his game-winning hit. Sloan had a single in addition to his double while Kincaid chipped in with a pair of base hits for the Indians.

The victory puts the Indians into the best-of-three division finals against the winer of the Tigers-Braves contest. The results:

Essegian's Homer In Sixth Decides

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Home runs by rookie Howard Edwards and Chuck Essegian and Pedro Ramos' relief pitching sparked Cleveland to a 4-2 victory over Detroit Tuesday.

Ramos replaced Cleveland starter Jim Grant in the eighth after Larry Osborne, batting for Jim Bunning, led off with a single. Ramos gave up a double to pinch-hitter Vic Wertz, moving Osborne to third. He scored on Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly to move the Tigers within two runs.

But Ramos got Rocky Colavito to pop up for the third out, and then blanked the Tigers in the ninth.

Essegian's leadoff home run in the sixth, which gave Cleveland a 3-1 lead, proved to be the winning run. Tito Francona gave the Indians an insurance run in the seventh with his second sacrifice fly of the game.

Edwards, who had four hits to boost his average to .364, hit a bases-empty homer in the first off Bunning. Steve Boros tied it in the fifth for Detroit with a homer off Grant, his fourth homer in two games.

Grant, whose record is now 5-4, gained his first victory since June 15. Bunning now has an 11-8 record.

Outdoor Club Dumps Kiwanis Tossers, 3-2

Cop Sixth Straight Hot Stove Victory

The Cumberland Outdoor Club, battling for a playoff berth in the Hot Stove Baseball League, registered its sixth straight triumph and snapped the nine-game winning streak of the pennant-winning Kiwanis Club yesterday in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Penn Avenue. The score was 3-2.

In the opener, the Cumberland Optimists edged the B.P.O. Elks, 13-2, in a slugfest which saw the two teams score 10 runs in the last inning.

The Outdoor Club came from behind to dump the Kiwanians when Gus Caporale's single bounced over the centerfielder's head with two runners on base and Caporale circled the bases with the winning run in the sixth inning. Kiwanis had led 2-0 at that point behind loser Dave Bruce who gave up but three hits and wiffed 12 batters. Woody Dodrill, the winning hurler, also allowed only three hits and struck out 11.

The win was the 14th for the third-place ODC while Kiwanis lost for the fourth time in 25 decisions.

Stan Twigg pounded out five straight hits, including a double, to lead the Optimists' attack. Nick Perlozzo belted a homer over the right field fence and collected a double for the losers. Jimmy Joyce contributed a three-bagger and Wolfe also homered in a losing cause. The results:

Yankees Clobber Minnesota, 14-1, Tony Kubek Hits 3-Run Homer

Ralph Terry Notches 16th Win Of Year

Tresh Belts Pair, Howard Gets 4 Hits, Pascual Is Loser

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tony Kubek celebrated his return to the New York Yankees' lineup Tuesday with a three-run homer his first time up and Tom Tresh, his rookie replacement, belted two homers in a 14-1 massacre of the Minnesota Twins.

Kubek, Tresh, and Elston Howard each drove in three runs apiece as the Yankees hammered loser Camilo Pascual for five runs in the first inning and then rallied for seven more in the seventh to snap a three-game losing streak.

The vigorous 18-hit attack by the Yankees boosted their American League lead to five games and helped righthander Ralph Terry coast to his 16th victory, which equalled his entire victory total of last year. Terry allowed five hits, three of them by Zoile Versalles.

Kubek, who last played for the Yankees in the 1961 World Series against the Cincinnati Reds, rejoined the club last Friday following nine months service in the Army and was installed in left field Tuesday in somewhat of a surprise move by manager Ralph Houk.

Kubek admitted he was "a little nervous" when he came to bat for the first time in the opening frame with the Yanks already ahead, 2-0, and two men on.

Pascual's first pitch to Kubek was a called strike but Tony lashed out at the second one and drove it 360 feet into the lower right field stands to complete the five-run rally.

Tresh, who took over Kubek's old shortstop position this season, hit his 11th homer in the second inning with the bases empty and his 12th with one on capped the seven-run explosion in the seventh.

Pascual, troubled by a sore elbow recently, was raked for six runs and five hits during the two innings he pitched. The defeat was his seventh compared with 15 victories.

Four-Run Fourth Wins For Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Herbert shut out the Baltimore Orioles on three hits Tuesday as the Chicago White Sox clustered all their runs in the fourth inning to sweep the two-game series with a 4-0 victory.

Herbert had a perfect game until two were out in the sixth inning when he walked Dick Hall, Baltimore's starting and losing pitcher.

He had a no-hitter intact until Russ Snyder opened the seventh with a sharp single to center field.

Boog Powell singled in the eighth and Charlie Law in the ninth for the other two Oriole hits.

In both cases double plays erased the hitters.

The White Sox got all their runs on five singles in the fourth, Al Smith and Camilo Carreon each getting a two-run hit.

Angels Explode In 9th Inning, Beat Bosox, 3-1

Bob Rodgers' Hit Key Blow In 3-Run Rally

BOSTON (UPI) — Catcher Bob Rodgers' bases-loaded single in the ninth inning Tuesday gave the Los Angeles Angels a 3-1 victory over Earl Wilson and the Boston Red Sox.

Rodgers' game-winning hit came off Boston reliefer Arnold Earley who had replaced Wilson after Bill Moran singled and Lee Thomas walked with one out in the ninth.

Earley threw a wild pitch to advance the runners and walked slugger Leon Wagner to load the bases before giving up the Rodgers' hit. Boston's ace rookie fireman Dick Radatz, who had been warmed up when Earley was called in, took over after the Rodgers hit to give up a sacrifice fly and end the inning on a pop-up.

Wilson and the Red Sox had a 1-0 lead over Angel starter Bo Belinsky on Ed Bressoud's double and Bob Tillman's single in the fourth inning. Belinsky was relieved after seven and Los Angeles reliefer Dan Osinski gained credit for his second victory by allowing only one hit over the last two innings.

Until the starters were relieved the game was reminiscent of Wilson's 2-0 o-hit victory over Belinsky and the Angels here last June 26. Wilson allowed just six hits in the 8 1-3 innings he worked while Belinsky gave up just three hits in the 7 innings he pitched.

Giants Nip Phils, 4-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, with Orlando Cepeda doubling in the go-ahead run, came from behind Tuesday to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-2, and win their fourth straight game.

Cepeda's smash to right center field highlighted a three-run rally in the sixth inning at the expense of righthander Art Mahaffey, who was seeking his seventh consecutive victory.

Harvey Kuenn opened the inning with his fifth homer of the year to tie the score 2-2. Chuck Hiller followed with a double and after Willie Mays had lined out to center field Cepeda brought Hiller around with another two-bagger.

Shortstop Ruben Amaro committed an error on the throw-in that allowed Cepeda to gain third from where he scored on Felipe Alou's sacrifice fly.

Dan Indians Gain Division Finals, Top Dodgers, 1-0

The Indians edged the Dodgers, 1-0, yesterday at Dapper Dan Field on Leiper Street to gain the Dan Division playoff finals of the Dapper Dan Little League as Ralph Leasure outdueled loser Poncho Klosterman in the "sudden death" single-game meeting.

Ricky Kincaid's two-out single scored Jimmy Spangler with the game's lone run in the second inning and Leasure made the tally stand up as he notched his seventh straight pitching win this season.

The hard-throwing righthander held the Dodgers to one hit—a first-inning two-out single by George Geatz—and struck out six as he went the distance for the eighth time this year.

Spangler opened the winning rally by singling with two out and he went to third on Larry Sloan's two-bagger. Kincaid then came through with his game-winning hit. Sloan had a single in addition to his double while Kincaid chipped in with a pair of base hits for the Indians.

The victory puts the Indians into the best-of-three division finals against the winer of the Tigers-Braves contest. The results:

Dodgers 000 000—0 1 0

Indians 010 00x—1 6 0

Essegian's Homer In Sixth Decides

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Home runs by rookie Howard Edwards and Chuck Essegian and Pedro Ramos' relief pitching sparked Cleveland to a 4-2 victory over Detroit Tuesday.

Ramos replaced Cleveland starter Jim Grant in the eighth after Larry Osborne, batting for Jim Bunning, led off with a single. Ramos gave up a double to pinch-hitter Vic Wertz, moving Osborne to third. He scored on Dick McAuliffe's sacrifice fly to move the Tigers within two runs.

But Ramos got Rocky Colavito to pop up for the third out, and then blanked the Tigers in the ninth.

Essegian's leadoff home run in the sixth, which gave Cleveland a 3-1 lead, proved to be the winning run. Tito Francona gave the Indians an insurance run in the seventh with his second sacrifice fly of the game.

Edwards, who had four hits to boost his average to .364, hit a bases-empty homer in the first off Bunning. Steve Boros tied it in the fifth for Detroit with a homer off Grant, his fourth homer in two games.

Grant, whose record is now 5-4, gained his first victory since June 15. Bunning now has an 11-8 record.

Cop Sixth Straight Hot Stove Victory

The Cumberland Outdoor Club, battling for a playoff berth in the Hot Stove Baseball League, registered its sixth straight triumph and snapped the nine-game winning streak of the pennant-winning Kiwanis Club yesterday in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Penn Avenue. The score was 3-2.

In the opener, the Cumberland Optimists edged the B.P.O. Elks, 13-2, in a slugfest which saw the two teams score 10 runs in the last inning.

The Outdoor Club came from behind to dump the Kiwanians when Gus Caporale's single bounced over the centerfielder's head with two runners on base and Caporale circled the bases with the winning run in the sixth inning. Kiwanis had led 2-0 at that point behind loser Dave Bruce who gave up but three hits and wiffed 12 batters. Woody Dodrill, the winning hurler, also allowed only three hits and struck out 11.

The win was the 14th for the third-place ODC while Kiwanis lost for the fourth time in 25 decisions.

Stan Twigg pounded out five straight hits, including a double, to lead the Optimists' attack. Nick Perlozzo belted a homer over the right field fence and collected a double for the losers. Jimmy Joyce contributed a three-bagger and Wolfe also homered in a losing cause. The results:

St. Louis Gains On Pittsburgh As Broglio Blanks Pirates, 5-0

Cardinals Trail By One Game In Bid For Fourth

Bucs Drop 13th Tilt In Last 17; Fire Holds Up Contest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —The St. Louis Cardinals climbed within one game of fourth place Pittsburgh Tuesday night as Ernie Broglio shutout the slumping Pirates on four hits, 5-0.

The loss was the 13th in the last 17 games for the Pirates.

Broglio fanned five Pirates, all of them looking at the third strike, in winning his ninth game against four losses.

Singles by Charley James and Bill White and Dal Maxvill's sacrifice fly gave the Cardinals one run in the second inning. And they added another in the sixth when White doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on a passed ball.

Play was held up for 27 minutes in the last of the seventh when fire broke out under the right field stands. Four members of the Forbes Field staff were overcome by smoke while fighting the lbaze. About 500 fans were forced to vacate their seats.

Stock Market Declines For Second Straight Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sellers held the upper hand on the stock market all day Tuesday, giving the popular averages a sizable loss on moderate turnover.

It was the first time since July 18 that the market had dropped for two successive sessions. Nevertheless, brokers seemed seriously worried by the new decline, noting that the selling lacked urgency.

Trading was fairly active in the first half of the session but slowed down during the afternoon and lacked the usual closing burst of energy. A total of 2,970,000 shares changed hands against 3,110,000 in the prior session.

Standard & Poor's inclusive 500-stock index closed off 0.39 at 57.36, the lowest point reached during the session. The Dow-Jones averages performed similarly with industrials off 4.89, rails down 0.89 but utilities up 0.23.

A total of 1,220 issues traded with declines outnumbering advances 648 to 307 and new 1962 lows exceeding new highs 15 to 1.

Martin-Marietta again was the most active issue, trading 102,767 shares, mostly in two large blocks and posting a loss of ¼.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Stock Market Declines For Second Straight Day

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sellers held the upper hand on the stock market all day Tuesday, giving the popular averages a sizable loss on moderate turnover.

It was the first time since July 18 that the market had dropped for two successive sessions. Nevertheless, brokers seemed seriously worried by the new decline, noting that the selling lacked urgency.

Trading was fairly active in the first half of the session but slowed down during the afternoon and lacked the usual closing burst of energy. A total of 2,970,000 shares changed hands against 3,110,000 in the prior session.

Standard & Poor's inclusive 500-stock index closed off 0.39 at 57.36, the lowest point reached during the session. The Dow-Jones averages performed similarly with industrials off 4.89, rails down 0.89 but utilities up 0.23.

A total of 1,220 issues traded with declines outnumbering advances 648 to 307 and new 1962 lows exceeding new highs 15 to 1.

Martin-Marietta again was the most active issue, trading 102,767 shares, mostly in two large blocks and posting a loss of ¼.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Marshall C. Skidmore who passed away seven years ago today, August 8, 1955

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence he suffered, impatience he bore,
'Til God called him home to suffer no more.
In our homes he is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to his name.
We who loved him in life sincerely,
Still love him in death just the same.

Sadly missed by his wife Catherine, daughter Edith and family; Son Paul and family.

In memory of our beloved husband and father George W. Porter, who died 1 year ago, August 8, 1961.

In memory we turn back the pages,
Along each road we tread,
We bless the years we had you
And leave the rest to God.
You left a beautiful memory
A sorrow too great to be told,
But to us who loved and lost you
Your memory will never grow old.
Wife & Children

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Clealand W. Cline. We also wish to thank the pallbearers, the Rev. Paul O'Brien, those who sent flowers and loaned cars for the funeral.
Mrs Nellie Cline & family

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Marshall C. Skidmore who passed away seven years ago today, August 8, 1955.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence he suffered, impatience he bore,
'Til God called him home to suffer no more.
In our homes he is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to his name.
We who loved him in life sincerely,
Still love him in death just the same.

Sadly missed by his wife Catherine, daughter Edith and family; Son Paul and family.

In memory of our beloved husband and father George W. Porter, who died 1 year ago, August 8, 1961.

In memory we turn back the pages,
Along each road we tread.
We bless the years we had you
And leave the rest to God.
You left a beautiful memory
A sorrow too great to be told,
But to us who loved and lost you
Your memory will never grow old.
Wife & Children

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Clealand W. Cline. We also wish to thank the pallbearers, the Rev. Paul O'Brien, those who sent flowers and loaned cars for the funeral.
Mrs Nellie Cline & family

Big Tree Falls, Cuts 4,000-Volt Power Line

Downtown Business Places Affected

Business establishments and apartments on South Mechanic Street and a number of Baltimore Street business places were without electricity for more than an hour yesterday after a huge tree in the rear of the Post Office toppled over and snapped two 4,000-watt wires.

The huge tree, which was sawed up and hauled away yesterday evening, was on ground purchased by the government so the Post Office can have a larger maneuvering area for vehicles.

Workmen removing a wall on the premises also moved some dirt from the vicinity of the tree, which became top heavy and toppled over.

A Post Office worker said there was a flash and "an awful peculiar noise" when the tree fell against the wires at 3 p. m.

A spokesman for the Potomac Edison Company said that when the three-phase 4,000 volt wires snapped a fault current caused three lines to swing together and burn at the S&S Motor Sales a block away near Howard Street on South Mechanic.

A police officer said that when the hot wires hit a puddle of water on the motor sales lot, the water turned into a mass of boiling water and flames. Two parked cars were marked by insulation of the falling wires.

Crews of PE moved into the area and power was restored about 4:20 p. m.

The Times-News Building was without electricity which affected the Teletype machines, air-conditioning and other equipment.

The stamp canceling machines at the Post Office went out of service when the power disruption occurred. The entire building was without electricity, and a candle was used in one section so the mail could be processed.

Washers, pressers, dry cleaning equipment, air-conditioning and office machinery were knocked out at the Crystal Laundry Company, and everything at the Queen City Cooperative Dairy shut down.

A patron of the Kwik Wash laundromat who was doing some laundry when the power failed walked across the street to a tavern and remarked, "I might as well spend my time here."

City police were sent to the area to direct traffic. The traffic light at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets was knocked out of service during the disruption of power.

The A&P Supermarket on Wineow Street reported that the lights in the building dimmed but did not go off, and business went on as usual.

Police headquarters reported the lights dimmed there for a while and came back on.

She is a member of the Pennsylvania Home Economics Association and of the American Home Economics Association. Her husband is employed at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory and they have a two-year-old son. The Laminsons live in Bowling Green.

The nursery school will be for children two to five years old, with a limit of 18 children per class. The Y described it as "an education program and not a baby-sitting service." Further information may be obtained by calling the Y, PA 4-5445.

Appeal Filed In LaVale Apartment Case

An appeal from a recent decision of the LaVale Zoning Board granting a Rockville man permission to build a $160,000, 16-unit apartment building along National Highway in LaVale was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Miles S. Amick and Carolyn E. Amick, his wife, through Attorney Thomas Lohr Richards, filed the written appeal. Mr. Richards noted that the written appeal was a confirmation of the oral notice of appeal given the LaVale Zoning Board when he appeared before the board on July 24.

W. Evans Buchanan Company, 820 Baltimore Road, Rockville, obtained permission from the LaVale Zoning Board to build the two-story project. The lot on which the apartment building is planned has 150 feet on National Highway frontage and extends back 275 feet to Braddock Street. The building will have 24 feet of front yard depth, 40 feet on the right side yard and 12 feet on the left side yard.

This property is situated along the south side of National Highway between a property owned by the Amicks and another owned by Mrs. F. A. G. Murray.

When Mr. Richards appeared before the board July 24 he was told that the applicant fulfilled all of the requirements of the LaVale zoning ordinance. Mr. Richards contended that there was not enough parking area, insufficient playground area and that the sector is not generally suited for apartments.

Credit Union's Assets Exceed $2½ Million

Of the 214 Maryland credit unions the B&O credit union ranks fourth in size. The state's credit unions serve over 160,000 members with assets exceeding $58 million.

The B&O credit union office is at 142 Harrison Street, Cumberland. Officers are Kenneth R. Alderton, president; Angelo Muscatell, vice president; Fred B. Griffith, secretary-treasurer, and Albert E. Beckwith, director.

More Visit State Parks

State parks and recreation areas in Allegany and Garrett counties reported higher attendance last weekend than for the previous weekend, the Department of State Forests and Parks said yesterday.

Swallow Falls had 4,220 visitors, as compared with 1,765 the previous week; Herrington Manor, 3,920, up from 2,556; New Germany, 5,226, compared to 1,818; Big Run, 2,711, compared to 2,117; Potomac State Forest, 132, up from 115; Deep Creek Lake, 6,367 compared to 3,995; Dan's Mountain, 540 compared to 450. Green Ridge also drew 540.

Total attendance at parks in the state was 110,165, up 10,459 from the previous weekend and up 20,490 from the corresponding weekend of 1961.

Chamber Unit To Meet

The business education committee of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber office to discuss plans for Business Education Day on October 24. William Howard, committee chairman, will preside.

Garrett County Citizens Form Organization

Plan To Study Teachers' Case

A new Garrett County organization called Citizens For Garrett County has been formed "to lend support to any problem of public concern that cannot be or has not been handled effectively by existing agencies."

Officers elected at an organizational meeting at the Accident Fire Hall were Ray Giconi, Grantsville, president; Harland Bowman, McHenry, vice president; Mrs. Robert Buckel, Swanton, secretary, and Mrs. Guy Stanton, Grantsville, treasurer.

Mr. Giconi said the organization is being designed to handle problems of many kinds in a fair and equitable manner. He said the first problem will be a thorough and complete investigation of the case of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Faith.

Mr. Faith, who has been vocational agriculture teacher at Northern High School since September 1955, was transferred June 4 to a junior high school teaching position at Kitzmiller.

Mrs. Florence Faith, who had been teaching first and second grades at Accident the past school year, was dismissed without recommendation or apparent reason, he said. She previously taught the second semester of the 1960-61 school year at Loch Lynn.

Willard L. Hawkins, superintendent of Garrett County public schools, would make no comment concerning the formation of the new group except to say that no one from this group has contacted him in an effort to arrange a meeting concerning the case of Mr. and Mrs. Faith.

However, two employment rules for teachers in Maryland public schools have been clearly established. One is that teachers are hired to teach in a particular county but not in a particular school. Their salary is not based on the school where they teach but on their years of experience.

The second rule is that a teacher has tenure after two years of teaching and after that time cannot be discharged without grounds. In Mrs. Faith's case she had taught only one and one-half years and consequently was not on tenure.

Admiral Burke Thanks CUF For USO Allocation

Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, (Ret.), national campaign chairman for United Services Organization (USO), wrote to the County United Fund offices here to acknowledge "with deepest gratitude" its 1963 allocation of $2,381.

Admiral Burke wrote to Winfield H. Adam, executive director of CUF:

"In behalf of 2¾ million young men and women in the uniform of our nation, we acknowledge with deepest gratitude the information that your United Fund has included USO for our full request of $2,381 for 1963.

"Through this splendid support, added impetus will be given to the USO's comprehensive program. It reflects America's concern for the welfare of our service personnel wherever they may be, at home or in the many foreign lands where needed on behalf of the security of freedom in this world."

USO, as an agency of County United Fund, provides for the educational, religious, and social needs of more than 2,000 servicemen and women from Cumberland and the tri-state area.

Randolh Millholland is local USO chairman.

Physicians on duty were Dr. Lewis Brings, Dr. Thomas Lewis and Dr. Harold Allen.

Three-gallon donors include Robert W. Linn, Fort Ashby, and George R. Shaffer, Mt. Savage.

Two-gallon donors are George L. Baker Jr., 629 Columbia Avenue, and Charles Rohrbaugh, Moorefield.

The entrants are to purchase a model airplane and assemble it. Craftsmanship and authenticity will determine the awarding of trophies, to be given by a model airplane manufacturer.

Four types of models—bomber, fighter, transport and missile—will be judged for trophies. Ribbons will be given for second and third place winners in each division.

Completed models may be turned in at the local recruiting office at the Post Office from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. or on August 20 and 21 at the Air Force exhibit at the Fair.

Fir Tree Lane Surface Needs Are Discussed

Commissioners Get Petition

A second discussion concerning the need for widening and surfacing Fir Tree Lane at Cresaptown was conducted at yesterday's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Francis Fabbri, who had appeared at the commissioners' July 31 meeting, was back yesterday with a petition signed by 53 persons requesting that Fir Tree Lane be widened and surfaced. He stressed that the road is not wide enough for two cars and there are a number of children living along the road.

After a lengthy discussion, Commissioner John J. Rowan suggested that Mr. Fabbri go to the office of County Roads Supervisor Harry T. Skelly and obtain the necessary right-of-way papers so that steps can be taken to get the road included in the county roads system.

The petition signed by the 53 Fir Tree Lane residents submitted yesterday stated in part that the residents have signed right of way papers to have the road widened and surfaced.

Mr. Fabbri apologized at yesterday's meeting for his conduct before the commissioners on July 31 when he implied that he could use political pressure against the commissioners.

At the July 31 meeting, Commissioner John T. Mason moved that Fir Tree Lane be surfaced but the motion died for lack of a second.

AFL-CIO Unit To Be Briefed On Conference

The Western Maryland Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the Allegany Labor Temple.

Business will include a report on a conference held here Saturday with Rep. Charles McC. Mathias relative to the economic development of Western Maryland.

Rep. Mathias, who represents Maryland's Sixth District in Congress, expressed "deep interest" in the area's economic development during the conference attended by officers of the council and heads of COPE committees of several unions.

The Kerr-Mills medical care program already in use in Maryland was also discussed at the conference.

Rep. Mathias told labor officials he will follow up the visit with letters concerning the discussions, according to Stanley Zorick, secretary-treasurer of the council.

Local Youngsters Camp At Yellowstone Park

A dozen young Cumberland campers, having the time of their lives, are visiting Yellowstone National Park today.

The campers and their four adult driver-counselors left Cumberland early Thursday morning in two tiny buses. Their first overnight stop was in Chicago the same night.

Miss Nancy Sitter, one of the drivers, reported in a letter to The News that the group stayed at the YMCA in Chicago, and got up at 6 the next morning to take a walk along Shoreline Drive on Lake Michigan. The highlight of this excursion was Albie Feldstein's finding $2 in the bushes of the park.

The group also visited a planetarium and spent two hours in the Chicago Museum of Natural History.

Leaving Chicago at 2 p. m., the group arrived in Mississippi Palisades Park, Ill., at 6:45 after shopping for supper.

At the supermarket, they bought so much food they got two full pages of trading stamps, but of a variety useless in the East. Gloria Windish gave them all to a grateful local woman.

The campers had planned to eat corn that evening, but found only half a dozen ears in a supermarket, although they were at the border of Iowa, noted as a corn-producing state. Next morning, they crossed the Mississippi and immediately were surrounded by fields of corn that extended for miles along the highway.

KP is performed on a rotating basis. Everybody does his own dishes unless he has other assigned duties. Other dishes, plus the cooking utensils are done by the campers on KP. Albie Feldstein and Larry Baldwin had that duty on the first night's cookout.

The group slept out Friday night for the first time, got up at 6 a. m. Saturday and headed for Sioux City, where they spent Saturday night. On Sunday they were at Mount Rushmore and in the Badlands of South Dakota, moved on to Ten Sleep Canyon, Wyo., on Monday, and to Yellowstone yesterday. They're to arrive at Anaconda, Mont., tomorrow, Spokane, Wash., and Seattle on Saturday. They'll stay at Seattle through Tuesday to see the World's Fair.

Police are also studying the possibility of month-about parking on Decatur Street.

The plan has been proposed to even the wear on both sides of the street and to allow street sweepers to keep the street clean.

Bible Found Not Guilty Of Manslaughter

Fines Not Imposed On Motor Charges

Leonard Oliver Bible, 37, of RFD 4, Cumberland, yesterday was found not guilty of manslaughter by automobile in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth (Smith) Robertson, 42, of 247 Virginia Avenue, who was fatally injured in a two-car collision on May 18 on Oldtown Road.

However, Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found Bible guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol and reckless driving, and imposed fines of $250 and $100 on the two motor charges.

Mrs. Robertson, who was a passenger in Bible's car, received a broken neck in the wreck and was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital.

Bible was traveling toward Cumberland on May 18 when he collided with a car operated by Paul D. Sites, 37, of RFD 2, Cumberland, about one-tenth of a mile east of the entrance road to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant.

Sites testified yesterday that he had just left the PPG plant at midnight when he saw the Bible car cross the center of the highway into the eastbound lane of traffic.

Passengers Testify

Joseph H. Davis and William H. Naill, also residents of the Flintstone area, were passengers in the Sites vehicle and told the court they also saw the Bible car cross the centerline and strike the car they were riding in.

Bible told the court he finished work at a local plant at 3 p. m. and had a beer at a West Side tavern before he met Mrs. Robertson in a tavern in South End.

From there they went [illegible] at Mrs. Robertson's son's car on Fifth Street and then went to Oldtown where Bible planned to look at a truck which was for sale.

Bible said he and Mrs. Robertson stopped at several taverns on Oldtown Road on their way back to Cumberland and he said they left the last tavern shortly before midnight.

Blinded By Lights

Bible testified that just before the collision he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car. He said his car struck the raised berm of the right side of the highway several times and he lost control of his vehicle as it crossed the center of the highway.

Trooper Roger Reynolds, who investigated, also testified and showed the court eight photos of the scene of the accident and the raised portion of the berm on the right side of the westbound lane in which Bible was traveling.

Trooper Reynolds also produced a statement from a doctor who made a blood test on Bible at Memorial Hospital two hours after the accident. The test showed Bible's blood contained .16 per cent alcohol and the trooper said the law regarding driving under the influence is a minimum .15 per cent.

Three witnesses for the defense, Calvin S. Karnes, 205 Fifth Street; Willie VanMeter, RFD 1, Oldtown, and Mrs. Gladys Bloss, also testified they had seen Bible at the last tavern just before the accident and in their opinion he was not under the influence of liquor.

Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason prosecuted and Bible was represented by William Walsh, local attorney.

Conference Set On City Scale

Officials of the City of Cumberland and the firm which supplied the city's scale two years ago are scheduled to meet in City Hall today.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said the city feels the scale has been too costly to repair and that there is something wrong or it would give better service.

The scale will be inspected this morning by a Mr. Yochelson, representative of the Washington Scale and Equipment Company.

He is scheduled to meet in City Hall at 1 p. m. with Mayor Chaney, City Engineer C. R. Nuzum and City Solicitor Hugh A. McMullen.

The scale was purchased during the fiscal year ending in June 1960 for $5,269.87 and cost about $6,000 by the time it was installed by the city.

Terrence Natale, 12, of 202 North Centre Street, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital with abrasions of his face and chest and a laceration of his lip. He is reported in "satisfactory" condition.

His brother Robert, 14, sustained an abrasion of his elbow, was treated at the hospital and was released. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Natale.

Cpl. Oliver Cook said the accident occurred about 5:15 p. m.

Big Tree Falls, Cuts 4,000-Volt Power Line

Downtown Business Places Affected

Business establishments and apartments on South Mechanic Street and a number of Baltimore Street business places were without electricity for more than an hour yesterday after a huge tree in the rear of the Post Office toppled over and snapped two 4,000-watt wires.

The huge tree, which was sawed up and hauled away yesterday evening, was on ground purchased by the government so the Post Office can have a larger maneuvering area for vehicles.

Workmen removing a wall on the premises also moved some dirt from the vicinity of the tree, which became top heavy and toppled over.

A Post Office worker said there was a flash and "an awful peculiar noise" when the tree fell against the wires at 3 p. m.

A spokesman for the Potomac Edison Company said that when the three-phase 4,000 volt wires snapped a fault current caused three lines to swing together and burn at the S&S Motor Sales a block away near Howard Street on South Mechanic.

A police officer said that when the hot wires hit a puddle of water on the motor sales lot, the water turned into a mass of boiling water and flames. Two parked cars were marked by insulation of the falling wires.

Crews of PE moved into the area and power was restored about 4:20 p. m.

The Times-News Building was without electricity which affected the Teletype machines, air-conditioning and other equipment.

The stamp canceling machines at the Post Office went out of service when the power disruption occurred. The entire building was without electricity, and a candle was used in one section so the mail could be processed.

Washers, pressers, dry cleaning equipment, air-conditioning and office machinery were knocked out at the Crystal Laundry Company, and everything at the Queen City Cooperative Dairy shut down.

A patron of the Kwik Wash laundromat who was doing some laundry when the power failed walked across the street to a tavern and remarked, "I might as well spend my time here."

City police were sent to the area to direct traffic. The traffic light at the intersection of Baltimore and Mechanic Streets was knocked out of service during the disruption of power.

The A&P Supermarket on Wineow Street reported that the lights in the building dimmed but did not go off, and business went on as usual.

Police headquarters reported the lights dimmed there for a while and came back on.

Appeal Filed In LaVale Apartment Case

An appeal from a recent decision of the LaVale Zoning Board granting a Rockville man permission to build a $160,000, 16-unit apartment building along National Highway in LaVale was filed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Miles S. Amick and Carolyn E. Amick, his wife, through Attorney Thomas Lohr Richards, filed the written appeal. Mr. Richards noted that the written appeal was a confirmation of the oral notice of appeal given the LaVale Zoning Board when he appeared before the board on July 24.

W. Evans Buchanan Company, 820 Baltimore Road, Rockville, obtained permission from the LaVale Zoning Board to build the two-story project. The lot on which the apartment building is planned has 150 feet on National Highway frontage and extends back 275 feet to Braddock Street. The building will have 24 feet of front yard depth, 40 feet on the right side yard and 12 feet on the left side yard.

This property is situated along the south side of National Highway between a property owned by the Amicks and another owned by Mrs. F. A. G. Murray.

When Mr. Richards appeared before the board July 24 he was told that the applicant fulfilled all of the requirements of the LaVale zoning ordinance. Mr. Richards contended that there was not enough parking area, insufficient playground area and that the sector is not generally suited for apartments.

More Visit State Parks

State parks and recreation areas in Allegany and Garrett counties reported higher attendance last weekend than for the previous weekend, the Department of State Forests and Parks said yesterday.

Swallow Falls had 4,220 visitors, as compared with 1,765 the previous week; Herrington Manor, 3,920, up from 2,556; New Germany, 5,226, compared to 1,818; Big Run, 2,711, compared to 2,117; Potomac State Forest, 132, up from 115; Deep Creek Lake, 6,367 compared to 3,995; Dan's Mountain, 540 compared to 450. Green Ridge also drew 540.

Total attendance at parks in the state was 110,165, up 10,459 from the previous weekend and up 20,490 from the corresponding weekend of 1961.

Garrett County Citizens Form Organization

Plan To Study Teachers' Case

A new Garrett County organization called Citizens For Garrett County has been formed "to lend support to any problem of public concern that cannot be or has not been handled effectively by existing agencies."

Officers elected at an organizational meeting at the Accident Fire Hall were Ray Giconi, Grantsville, president; Harland Bowman, McHenry, vice president; Mrs. Robert Buckel, Swanton, secretary, and Mrs. Guy Stanton, Grantsville, treasurer.

Mr. Giconi said the organization is being designed to handle problems of many kinds in a fair and equitable manner. He said the first problem will be a thorough and complete investigation of the case of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Faith.

Mr. Faith, who has been vocational agriculture teacher at Northern High School since September 1955, was transferred June 4 to a junior high school teaching position at Kitzmiller.

Mrs. Florence Faith, who had been teaching first and second grades at Accident the past school year, was dismissed without recommendation or apparent reason, he said. She previously taught the second semester of the 1960-61 school year at Loch Lynn.

Willard L. Hawkins, superintendent of Garrett County public schools, would make no comment concerning the formation of the new group except to say that no one from this group has contacted him in an effort to arrange a meeting concerning the case of Mr. and Mrs. Faith.

However, two employment rules for teachers in Maryland public schools have been clearly established. One is that teachers are hired to teach in a particular county but not in a particular school. Their salary is not based on the school where they teach but on their years of experience.

The second rule is that a teacher has tenure after two years of teaching and after that time cannot be discharged without grounds. In Mrs. Faith's case she had taught only one and one-half years and consequently was not on tenure.

Fir Tree Lane Surface Needs Are Discussed

Commissioners Get Petition

A second discussion concerning the need for widening and surfacing Fir Tree Lane at Cresaptown was conducted at yesterday's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Francis Fabbri, who had appeared at the commissioners' July 31 meeting, was back yesterday with a petition signed by 53 persons requesting that Fir Tree Lane be widened and surfaced. He stressed that the road is not wide enough for two cars and there are a number of children living along the road.

After a lengthy discussion, Commissioner John J. Rowan suggested that Mr. Fabbri go to the office of County Roads Supervisor Harry T. Skelly and obtain the necessary right-of-way papers so that steps can be taken to get the road included in the county roads system.

The petition signed by the 53 Fir Tree Lane residents submitted yesterday stated in part that the residents have signed right of way papers to have the road widened and surfaced.

Mr. Fabbri apologized at yesterday's meeting for his conduct before the commissioners on July 31 when he implied that he could use political pressure against the commissioners.

At the July 31 meeting, Commissioner John T. Mason moved that Fir Tree Lane be surfaced but the motion died for lack of a second.

The Kerr-Mills medical care program already in use in Maryland was also discussed at the conference.

Police Consider Street Proposals

The Police Department is studying the possibility of reversing the flow of traffic on one street and for month-about parking on another street, according to Commissioner William V. Keegan.

He said a study is being made of a proposal for reversing the traffic flow on Glenn Street, since there have been a number of complaints regarding the difficulty of entering the street at present.

Police are also studying the possibility of month-about parking on Decatur Street.

The plan has been proposed to even the wear on both sides of the street and to allow street sweepers to keep the street clean.

Bible Found Not Guilty Of Manslaughter

Fines Not Imposed On Motor Charges

Leonard Oliver Bible, 37, of RFD 4, Cumberland, yesterday was found not guilty of manslaughter by automobile in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth (Smith) Robertson, 42, of 247 Virginia Avenue, who was fatally injured in a two-car collision on May 18 on Oldtown Road.

However, Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found Bible guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol and reckless driving, and imposed fines of $250 and $100 on the two motor charges.

Mrs. Robertson, who was a passenger in Bible's car, received a broken neck in the wreck and was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital.

Bible was traveling toward Cumberland on May 18 when he collided with a car operated by Paul D. Sites, 37, of RFD 2, Cumberland, about one-tenth of a mile east of the entrance road to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant.

Sites testified yesterday that he had just left the PPG plant at midnight when he saw the Bible car cross the center of the highway into the eastbound lane of traffic.

Passengers Testify

Joseph H. Davis and William H. Naill, also residents of the Flintstone area, were passengers in the Sites vehicle and told the court they also saw the Bible car cross the centerline and strike the car they were riding in.

Bible told the court he finished work at a local plant at 3 p. m. and had a beer at a West Side tavern before he met Mrs. Robertson in a tavern in South End.

From there they went to look at Mrs. Robertson's son's car on Fifth Street and then went to Oldtown where Bible planned to look at a truck which was for sale.

Bible said he and Mrs. Robertson stopped at several taverns on Oldtown Road on their way back to Cumberland and had several more beers. He said they left the last tavern shortly before midnight.

Blinded By Lights

Bible testified that just before the collision he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car. He said his car struck the raised berm of the right side of the highway several times and he lost control of his vehicle as it crossed the center of the highway.

Trooper Roger Reynolds, who investigated, also testified and showed the court eight photos of the scene of the accident and the raised portion of the berm on the right side of the westbound lane in which Bible was traveling.

Trooper Reynolds also produced a statement from a doctor who made a blood test on Bible at Memorial Hospital two hours after the accident. The test showed Bible's blood contained .16 per cent alcohol and the trooper said the law regarding driving under the influence is a minimum .15 per cent.

Three witnesses for the defense, Calvin S. Karnes, 205 Fifth Street; Willie VanMeter, RFD 1, Oldtown, and Mrs. Gladys Bloss, also testified they had seen Bible at the last tavern just before the accident and in their opinion he was not under the influence of liquor.

Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason prosecuted and Bible was represented by William Walsh, local attorney.

Conference Set On City Scale

Officials of the City of Cumberland and the firm which supplied the city's scale two years ago are scheduled to meet in City Hall today.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney said the city feels the scale has been too costly to repair and that there is something wrong or it would give better service.

The scale will be inspected this morning by a Mr. Yochelson, representative of the Washington Scale and Equipment Company.

He is scheduled to meet in City Hall at 1 p. m. with Mayor Chaney, City Engineer C. R. Nuzum and City Solicitor Hugh A. McMullen.

The scale was purchased during the fiscal year ending in June 1960 for $5,269.87 and cost about $6,000 by the time it was installed by the city.
